Residents Reflect On U.S. Air Strikes Against Afghanistan

United States military air strikes began in Afghanistan on Sunday, signaling the beginning of a new war. Those in and around the downtown area ot Princeton, and on the Princeton University campus, spoke with Town Topics on Monday about the situation.

"It's interesting how much emotion it fills me with," said an unidentified Princeton resident as she choked back tears. "I really can't talk. I'm speechless. What I do have to say is that it is a remarkable time that we've all spent. I have to believe this resolve is for the best."

"I think it has to be understood that what we are retaliating against, the actions in other words, are not going to be tolerated," said Lou Coppella, owner of the soon-to-be-opened Lost and Found store on Nassau Street. "It's not something that you wipe out over the course of an evening, not by any means."

Princeton Theological Seminary student Sloane Franklin, a Texas native, disagrees with the United States' response.

"There is such a thing as necessary violence, but I'm not sure that this is it," he commented. "I am very glad that the government is dropping food donations. I think that is the right thing to do, but I do question the bombings. I question the way in which we are going about this as a nation, as a government.

"It seems to me that we're not seeking justice, but vengeance. The interest is not in bringing who even is responsible to justice in the world courts, which should be done. This sense ot vigilantism, this blind rage that seems to be governing, it saddens me."

"The media has been very one-sided, and the alternative media hasn't been given as much voice as they traditionally have, like during the Gulf War and the troubles in El Salvador in the 1980's."

Mr. Franklin called the government's conduct a "cowboy diplomacy," and was angered by what he called the "arrogance to proclaim that one government can wipe evil from the tace of the earth."

Sarnoff, University, Agree on Land Sale

To meet its long-term expansion needs, Princeton University has agreed to buy approximately 90 acres of Samott Corporation's 345-acre West Windsor campus — providing Samoff receives approval of its general development plan from West Windsor Township. The price was not disclosed.

"We are interested in purchasing these lands for the same reason that the University obtained lands in West Windsor between Route 1 and Lake Camegie in the 1920's and the 1940's, to ensure thet we can accommodate future ecademic, research, residential and other education needs over the very long term," said Richard Sples, the University's vice presldent for finance and administration.

The 90 acres includes the portion of the property that fronts along Route 1 and a section along the Millstone River near Route 1.

Sarnoff's orlginal plan, presented in concept form In February, called for the development of its front campus to generate rovenue. "This sale, when completed, will give us funds for thet fond without needing to develop it," sold Jim Cernes, Sernoff CEO.

"As we listened to the concerns of the citizens of the community end held ongoing discussions with township officials, it was clear that less development phased farther out in time wes important," he added.

Sometime after the first of the year, Sarnoff will be proposing a General Development Plan to the Wost Windsor Planning Board that would ellow a floor area retio of approximately .21. This represents a roduction from Samoff's original proposal of .24.

Borough Mayor Addresses Issues That Concern Princeton Residents

In the prolongod effort to come to a decislon on whether to bulld a garage in tho downtown, did-Mayor and Council neglect the day-to-day issues of the Borough — issuos such as garbago pickup on Nossau Street, litter, and the mushrooming of advertising and news boxos?

To tind out what the Borough has been doing to deal with thoso problems — soveral of whlch hod beon raised in letters to lho oditor over the summer — Town Topics osked Borough Meyor Morvln Reed for his commenls.

Tho streets are littored in major part becauso the downtown is very busy ovory day, he said. But the problem also rosults from e long-held Borough bollef that, as in a Europoan villago, shep owners in Princeten ere responsibto tor swooping lholr sidewalks.

Air Strikes

"Everybody knows what a difficult situation we're in," said Princeton resident Herb Hobler. "It's going to last for a long time, with no sound direction as to where we're going. I'm concerned about those otherwise well meaning people who would like to somehow negotiate this through peace. I don't see that there is any possibility of negotiating with those Muslim fundamentalists who are out to get not only us, but people who disagree with them. We're liabel to have more problems in this country, and I think we just have to be ready for them."

One unidentified resident who works in Princeton expressed her pleasure with the decision to retaliate by saying, "I'm happy that we did it. Don't turn the other cheek."

"Unfortunately I think it's necessary," said Gladys Petrilla of Monroe Township. "I think everyone expected it."

A Little Surprised

Princeton University sophomore Frances You seemed a little surprised by the United States' retaliation.

"I feel really disconnected because they're not telling us too much about it, and they didn't even tell us they were attacking," she explained. "It's hard to have an opinion on it when you don't know what's going on."

Princeton University freshman Ian McHenry, orginally from California, agrees.

"I'm not as qualified and well informed as the people who made the decision," he said. "Morally, of course, we wouldn't want any war at all, but you're in a game and you have to play by the rules in order to secure what you want. I really can't say much more than that."

Princeton University sophomore Tom Hazlehurst said justice was served.

"I haven't been following it closely, but from what I've heard, it sounds like it was justified," he said. "If they're going to hit us, we might as well retaliate. I really haven't been following it closely enough to know what targets the U.S. hit, but I'm definitely not against the idea of going into Afghanistan and getting Osama bin Laden."

Writer on Artists in U.S. To Appear at Micawber

Blair Fuller, author of Art in the Blood: Two Centuries of Tolent, will present a reading and sign copies of his book, on Thursday, October 11, at 6, at Micawber Books, 110-114 Nassau Street.

Art in the Blood is an informal history of the artist's experience in America, from Revolutionary times to the present. Mr. Fuller presents seven generations of painters and sculptors of the Negus-Fuller family, reflecting the evolution of the artist's role in this country.

A former editor of The Paris Review, Mr. Fuller has received two O. Henry awards for his short stories.

Afghan Ambassador Farhadi Will Address Princeton Friday

Dr. Ravan Farhadi, the Northern Alliance's representative in the United Nations, will speak at Princeton University on Friday, October 12 at 6:30. The event will be held in McCosh 50.

As the representative of what is recognized as the legitimate Afghan government by all but two countries in the world, Dr. Farhadi has been in exile since the Taliban overran Afghanistan. He is expected to share his insights on the Taliban and to explain how the Northern Alliance can help the United States in its global battle against terrorism.

Dr. Farhadi is speaking at the invitation of the Princeton Committee Against Terrorism (PCAT), a nonpartisan and nonprofit educational student activist group formed in response to the September 11 tragedy.

Carlos Ramos-Mrosovsky, an organizer of the PCAT event, said, "On September 11th, freedom came under attack. These courageous people in Afghanistan understand that as well as anyone else in the world; they have been fighting for freedom for years. We are privileged to host their emissary, who will assuage the concerns that many have raised that America is waging a war on the people of Afghanistan. To the contrary, Dr. Farhadi will demonstrate that our countries share a mutual cause."

Green Party Candidates Campaign For Two Township Committee Seats

This article is the first in a series of three that will be written on the candidates running for Township Committee in the November election. The seat to be vacated by Democratic Mayor Phyllis Marchand will be open, as will the seat to be vacated by Democrat Roslyn Denard. The mayor will be a candidate for re-election; Ms. Denard announced her intention to step down several months ago.

Green Party candidates Emily Cook and Jeff Gorman — a licensed clinical social worker and a local businessman, respectively — are campaigning for election to Township Committee. Both candidates are recent converts to the Green Party.

They agree that party labels mean little at the municipal level, but say the two major parties do not represent them, while the views of the Green Party are views with which they can identify.

Mr. Gorman, the proprietor of Creative Computing on Witherspoon Street, ran in the Democratic primary for U.S. Congress in the 6th District in 1992. He and his wife Marj have three young children and have lived in the Township for five years.

TOPICS Of the Town

Ms. Cook co-chairs the Mercer County Green Party. She has a private psychotherapy practice and also works for Family & Children's Services. Ms. Cook has lived in the Township for 14 years. She and her husband, Al Glimis, live on Dempsey Avenue.

The Green Party, Mr. Gorman observed, stands for environmental and social responsibility, which includes fiscal responsibility. "The Greens stand for social and economic justice," added Ms. Cook, "and for feminism."

As candidates of the Green Party, the candidates have the support of a national organization. There is, however, no financial backing from the party. Indeed, one of the major objectives of the Green Party is campaign finance reform.

What party affiliation does provide is a group of volunteers to help with phone calls and the legwork involved in a campaign. The local party has also received a few donations from individuals. "Volunteers from all over the state have joined us," Mr. Gorman noted.

The candidates have canvassed the Township — on a door-to-door basis in some neighborhoods — and they say they are encouraged by residents' response. "People are often willing to cross party lines at a municipal election," Ms. Cook pointed out. "We think we have a good chance of winning. Our positions are so different from those of the Democrats on the Committee."

"Township Committee has lost touch with its constituency," Mr. Gorman agreed. "People are tired of not being served by their government."

Municipal Building

The candidates point, for example, to the municipal building. "Everyone we talked to is unhappy about it," Mr. Gorman said.

"The municipal government should have exerted more oversight. When the Committee fired the first contractor, they did not properly secure the building — and look at the result. They put plastic over the windows, but left the water on."

open for a while after the Township terminated its contract last fall with Paphian Enterprises Inc., general contractor for the $11.8 million municipal building. As a result, mold grew inside; and interior operations were terminated at the end of August, to allow for mold removal. See story, this issue).

Ms. Cook pointed out that Paphian Enterprises, the low bidder for the municipal construction job, is a big Democratic PAC contributor, which she said she found "objectionable."

"What litigation costs will we find are associated with Paphian?" she also queried. "The Committee has property owners and taxpayers over a barrel. You can be sure a tax increase is coming. This building will end up costing at least $16 million. For years, there has been no proper oversight," she said.

"From this point forward," Mr. Gorman suggested, "every decision must be made wisely and not wastefully. Those responsible for construction must provide professional oversight to the contractors.

"They must be guided by a sense of fiscal responsibility. The municipal government has a responsibility to run as though it cannot afford a mistake."

Senior Housing

Another issue on which the candidates feel strongly is the need for senior housing in the Township. Ms. Cook, who has worked with a number of senior citizen programs, noted, "I never believed the Committee exerted enough leadership in seeking developers for senior housing."

With one-fourth of the Township population in the senior citizen category and many unable to afford homes in Princeton, she observed, "This community will soon be made up only of very wealthy elder citizens and families."

With regard to the Township's draft of an ordinance that would provide an overlay zone for senior housing, she observed, "We don't want to solve this problem too late."

> "Why not build a municipal building on Mt. Lucas Road and put senior housing where the municipal building is? Then seniors would be close to town; they could walk to stores."

"Why not build a municipal building on Mt. Lucas Road [one of the overlay locations] and put senior housing where the municipal building is?" Mr. Gorman asked rhetorically. "Then seniors would be close to town; they could walk to stores.

"Someone on the Committee should engage in an ongoing dialogue with the community," he continued, "and should ask residents whether they want an elite subdivision or a community for middle class people."

The candidates suggested the possibility of bank loans for construction, and of community investment in senior housing. "We have to think out of the box," Ms. Cook said.

Another need in the Township, the candidates stressed, is the need for youth programs. "When I work with teens and pre-teens from mixed or broken families, I see the need for programs for people," Ms. Cook pointed out. "I don't think the Committee's priorities have been for people for a long time."

Mr. Gorman said he felt a center in the heart of the Township that would provide "a place for kids to play," should be an objective.

Environmental Stance

The Green Party is known for its pro-environmental positions. Translated to the municipal level, Mr. Gorman said, he would push for responsible oversight of the Township's recent open space acquisitions. He mentioned such factors as limiting the use of harmful pesticides and preventing excessive daytime watering.

The Green Party also has a position on the Township's deer management plan. The candidates believe that all the alternatives to lethal methods of deer control should be tried. "People say that immunocontraception doesn't work," Mr. Gorman pointed out, "but it has not been fully investigated. The Township could receive Federal funding to try it."

The use of reflectors, which have now been installed along a two-mile stretch of Township roads, should be installed throughout the Township, he also said.

Aside from the fact that killing deer has never proved to be a lasting solution to deer over-population, the candidates say, the side effects of bringing a deer management firm to town have been severe.

---

"The Township ordinance prohibiting the feeding of deer is extreme," Mr. Gorman said. "The surveillance of citizens during the White Buffalo hunt [in the spring] was unwarranted; and a $125,000 annual expense for a non-emergent solution is too costly."

The candidates say they have been reluctant to canvas for votes in the wake of the terrorist attacks; and on Sunday, when the U.S. air strikes on Afghanistan started, they did not go out.

"We don't pretend that larger events don't exist," Ms. Cook noted, "but we still have to prepare for an election on November 6."

Democrat Joseph O'Neill Running for Borough Council

The November race for Borough Council includes two Democratic incumbents, a Republican newcomer, and a student at Princeton University.

Democrats Joseph P. O'Neill and Roger Martindell are seeking a return to office, while Michael Carnevale II, the lone Republican candidate, is trying to win his first term on Council. The fourth candidate is Princeton University student Steven Abt.

In the weeks ahead, Town Topics will interview the candidates. This first interview is with Mr. O'Neill, who was appointed a member of Council in August after the resignation of Ryan Stark Lilienthal.

Joseph P. O'Neill

Joseph P. O'Neill, 68, has lived in Princeton with his wife, Anne, for the past 35 years. They are the parents of two grown children. For 17 years, until he was appointed to Council, he served as a member of the Regional Planning Board.

He retired in 1994 as principal research scientist with Educational Testing Service., where he directed a program to improve the quality of leadership in North American churches and synagogues.

In his years in Princeton he has seen the downtown change from a collection of stores that served local residents to a destination. "In a sense, what we have been doing is creating a downtown with all the amenities of a destination."

He sees the plaza that is included in the Borough's downtown redevelopment plan as a way to create an amenity that everyone will be able to enjoy. He also believes the Borough should maintain as much control over the design of the garage and its construction as possible.

Mr. O'Neill sees Princeton University needing to add a million square feet of space every decade in order to continue as a world-class installation. "Even though it needs to grow, where it grows and how it grows is something we must look at carefully," he said, adding that the University might consider placing its non academic functions on its West Windsor campus.

The Borough for years has been proactive in its construction of affordable housing, with the majority of units designed for home ownership. Mr. O'Neill said it is time to take a very hard look, given the lack of land, at affordable rentals as well as sales.

"These address two different economic groups. We have to ask who we want to serve. I would want to serve the elderly poor." The key reason, for this, he said, is that this housing places no additional burden on the school system.

A major question is whether the Arts Council will be able to remain and expand at its present site. As a member of the Planning Board, Mr. O'Neill voted against its application in December. He said that neighbors of the Arts Council raised issues of equity and fairness. The land required major variances, and the question was asked, 'Would you have granted these variances in the western section of town?

"If we are to provide equal protection of the law, we have to be even more protective of people not as able to protect themselves," he said.

The most important role of government in the years ahead is to promote the informed consent of the community when value disagreements come up, said Mr. O'Neill.

As examples of such value disagreements, he pointed to the environmentalists against senior housing at Elm Court II and Harris Road residents against the Medical Center. "There is a common thread," he said.

"It is not so much choosing the good over the bad, or even the greater good over the lesser good. But people are valuing the same good different ways. The environmentalists do not value senior housing the same way as senior housing advocates do."

Government's Role

Government's role is to try and lay out in front of the community which values should be honored, he said.

Mr. O'Neill feels his experience on the Planning Board will be of great help on Council because he got to know the Township as well as the Borough. He is concerned, especially since the last vote on consolidation (approved by Township voters but rejected in the Borough) that there has been a certain distancing between the Township and Borough.

"We are joined at the hip. We want to have good relations with the Township in which we show generosity and understanding, as they have shown to us. Council's decision not to help rebuild the Township recycling shed at the shopping center was, to him, an incident that should not have happened.

Mr. O'Neill believes the Borough should not pass an ordinance that would allow the police to enforce underage drinking laws on private property. " It is very bad for police to go into private quarters to stop kids from drinking," he said.

Marvin Reed

"As fewer shops and properties are owned by individuals, you get more that simply have managers who may or may not consider street sweeping an important duty."

Those Borough merchants who tend to their own sidewalks believe every merchant should do this, said Mayor Reed, who then asked whether it would be better instead to institute a system where the Borough provides sidewalk sweeping.

"If we do this ourselves, we could charge every store a mercantile fee," he said. This mercantile, or license, fee is a variation of the special improvement district tax that has been roundly rejected by the Borough's merchant community.

If enough money were raised, the mercantile fee could also be used to improve planters and plant flowers, said the Mayor. He added that there is a limit to what should be charged to all Borough taxpayers in order to cover cleanup for retail businesses.

"Before the end of the year, I will give Council a solid proposal for instituting a mercantile tax," he said.

There has been a small bright spot in the clean-up department. With gum as the target, the Borough recently took an old fire pumper, converted it into a steam cleaning system, and sent it onto Nassau Street to remove the wads of gum that have adhered to the pavement.

As for the plastic bags of trash that dot Nassau Street from east to west, Mayor Reed pointed out that stores contract with their own haulers, and that the Borough has traditionally avoided getting involved with collection of waste from commercial properties.

He said, however, that he plans to ask Council whether to reexamine how commercial garbage is picked up, and whether the Borough should contract with a hauler for the whole downtown. This could be paid for by the mercantile tax.

As for the flattened cardboard boxes that are often found nestled against the black plastic garbage bags on Nassau Street, Mayor Reed said that merchants are required to arrange their own recycling.

In the past, many merchants had brought the boxes to the recycling shed at the Princeton Shopping Center. This ceased, said the Mayor, after Borough Council refused to contribute to the cost of reconstructing the shed after it had been damaged by fire.

Responding to the Borough's decision, Township officials instructed the manager of the shed not to accept cardboard from Borough people, said Mayor Reed.

As for the boxes selling newspapers and giving away advertising brochures that line Nassau Street, the Borough appears to have its hands tied.

Because Nassau Street is a state highway, the state has jurisdiction over all news and advertiser boxes. Since the state does not have sufficient personnel to enforce its own newsbox regulations, the Borough asked for the right to regulate the boxes on Nassau Street. The state offered this authority, but with so many strings attached that the Borough has done nothing so far. To move forward would lead to a substantial legal expense.

"For all intents and purposes, we were given no enforcement," said Mayor Reed. "We would have to bring a complaint before an administrative law judge in the attorney general's office. This requires 30 days' notice and the scheduling of a hearing in Trenton."

As for the two kiosks on Nassau Street, the subject of one letter writer's complaint, Mayor Reed said the Borough has given permission to Princeton University to remove the one in front of the Garden Theatre. As for the one on Nassau and Witherspoon Street, he said the bank on the corner, then Summit, had asked three or four years ago for permission to remove it.

"Council did not give this. But based on the decision made recently on the other kiosk, they probably would allow it to be removed if requested."

Township Expects Completion Soon Of Mold Removal

Removal of mold from the Township Municipal Building is proceeding on schedule, according to Township Engineer Robert Kiser.

The Safeway Environmental Group of New York City [the Bronx] has been engaged in removing the mold since about September 10. All interior construction was suspended after the mold was discovered in mid-August.

Mold growth occurred because the building remained open last fall and moisture was allowed to collect after the Township terminated its contract with Paphian Enterprises Inc. [general contractor for the $11.8 million municipal building], according to Township officials. The Paphian company denies responsibility.

Most mold was in the lower level of the building, which will eventually house the Township Police Department. There was, however, some on each of the other levels, as well as in the heating and air conditioning system.

"All debris in the building has been thrown out," Mr. Kiser said on October 5. "The walls and floors have all been cleaned three times. In addition, all the ducts were cleaned."

A huge vacuum cleaner was used, Mr. Kiser said, after which a "drying unit" blew hot air through the building. Materials taken from the building interior have been sent to a lab for testing; and by the end of October, the engineer predicted, inside work can resume.

Mr. Kiser added that no further moisture can enter the structure, as it is now completely sealed. In addition, he noted, work is progressing on the penthouse level, where no mold was discovered.

Township employees who entered the new municipal building prior to mold removal were examined by a physician, Mr. Kiser said, to make sure they suffered no harmful effects. No adverse results were discovered.

Mr. Kiser said the bonding company, Travellers Insurance, is expected to pick up the $280,000 removal cost.

Completion of the municipal complex, originally scheduled to open last winter, is now expected by spring 2002.

Intoxicated Teen Taken to PMC With Head Injury

A 17-year-old juvenile who was residing at Princeton University on a recruitment visit was taken to the Princeton Medical Center after apparently striking his head.

Police said the incident occurred somewhere between the nighttime hours of September 28 and the early morning hours of September 29.

Police said the Illinois juvenile attended a party in the courtyard at 1903 Hall, and consumed several beers from a keg.

The unidentified victim became intoxicated and could not remember anything after being at the party. Investigation revealed that he had fallen to ground, striking his head.

The juvenile knocked on numerous Borough residences, seeking medical attention. Police were called, and found him covered in blood. Police said he was also incoherent.

The juvenile was transported to the PMC, where he received six stitches to the back of his head. He was also treated for a laceration to the chin. His blood alcohol level was .16%. The incident is still under investigation.

Robbery Charge

A 23-year-old Trenton man was arrested and charged with robbery on October 5. Police said Alejandro Martinez attempted to steal a 21-year-old Borough resident's purse while she was walking on Bank Street.

During the robbery, the woman resisted, and pushed Martinez to the ground. He was arrested on October 6 after turning himself in to the police. He was released on $7,500 (10 percent) bail.

Police arrested a 48-year-old Trenton man after he was observed shoplifting a walkman player on Monday at the Princeton University Store on University Place.

Charles W. Kunicki was arrested at 1:26 p.m.. He was later released with summonses.

A 41-year-old Monmouth Junction man was arrested and charged with simple assault and disorderly conduct on Sunday. Police said Patrick L. Root had thrown glass bottles, striking a 25-year-old Hamilton Township woman, and a 26-year-old Kendall Park resident. Root was released with summonses.

A 16-year-old female Princeton Borough resident was arrested and charged with juvenile delinquency possession of marijuana.

Subsequent to a Juvenile Family Crisis investigation, she was found to be in possession of marijuana (under 50 grams), and a marijuana smoking pipe. She was released to her parents.

FLAG PIN MAKERS: Fourth graders at Johnson Park School made beaded American flag pins to sell at back-to-school nights on Wednesday and Thursday. The funds raised were donated to the American Red Cross to aid victims and families of the World Trade Center attacks.

Candidates' Night

Activities Scheduled During YWCA's Week Without Violence

The National YWCA's Week Without Violence was created several years ago as a national movement to encourage practical and sustainable alternatives to violence. The YWCA Princeton encourages all community members, adults and children alike, to attend one or more of the following activities.

Everyone is invited to the Week Without Violence Kick-Off on Sunday, October 14, from 2-6, in the All-Purpose Room of the YWCA on Paul Robeson Place. There is no charge for this event, refreshments will be provided, and ample parking is available.

Activities will include performances by local choral groups, a folksinger, and a magician; a roaming clown; a martial arts demonstration; open gym time and fun on the Tumblebus; signing of peace pledges; and appearances by professional soccer players and Philadelphia Eagles cheerleaders.

More than 20 community groups will have interactive booths.

NJ State Senator Shirley Turner will speak, then lead a procession to the YW's Peace Pole on the grounds of the Bramwell House. The closing will feature a candle-lighting ceremony to "pass the light of peace into the community."

At this time, members of the community will be asked to leave a light on in their homes at all times during the Week Without Violence to signal that their homes are places of peace, safety, and refuge.

The Kick-Off is the first of several activities scheduled throughout the month. A Community Study Circle will address "Princeton, Then, Now, and in the Future: Race Relations" at the Frist Campus Center of Princeton University on Tuesday, October 16, from 7-10.

On Wednesday, October 24, the YWCA Princeton will offer a workshop on "Using Anger Wisely," from 7-9.

For more information on any of the events mentioned above, call 497-2100, ext. 304.

Breast Cancer Walk To Take Place Oct. 14

On Sunday, October 14, the American Cancer Society will hold "Making Strides Against Cancer," its non-competitive walk to raise awareness of and funds for breast cancer, at six New Jersey locations. Locally, the walk will take place in Princeton Forrestal Village. Registration will be at 10; and the walk will start at 11.

Since 1993, "Making Strides" has been the Cancer Society's rallying cry to raise awareness and proceeds for breast cancer. Last year, 325,000 walkers across the country raised more than $26 million. "Making Strides" pledges are dedicated to life-saving American Cancer Society research, education, patient support and advocacy programs to defeat the disease.

Get involved. Call 1-800-ACS-2345.

2000 Nobel Laureate To Give Einstein Lecture

Herbert Kroemer, the 2000 Nobel laureate in physics, will be the speaker at the 2001 Albert Einstein Memorial Lecture on Thursday, October 18. The lecture will be held at Princeton University's Frist Campus Center, Room 302, starting at 5:30.

Without Dr. Kroemer's work in developing the concept of double heterostructure lasers, much of the high technology that the modern world takes for granted — like compact disc technology and fiber-optic communication — would not exist.

Dr. Kroemer continues to "push the envelope" in the heterostructure field, applying his knowledge to the development of even faster working high-performance devices of the future.

Seating is limited for the lecture, which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the Princeton area. To make an advance reservation, call the Chamber, at 520-1776.

March Against Bigotry Planned for Sunday

To counter the wave of hate crimes — more than 600 nationally and 70 in New Jersey — since the September 11 terrorist attack, the Coalition for Peace Action and the Princeton Clergy Association are co-sponsoring a Unity March Against Bigotry.

Gathering for the march begins at 1 on Sunday, October 14 at the Princeton YWCA's athletic fields, and will end around 2 at the same site.

People of good will of all ages, faiths, races, and national backgrounds are invited to participate in the march. Children are particularly urged to come and help lead the march, and a number of them will speak at the program.

The march route is short, to facilitate the participation of children and differently-abled people. A diverse group of mothers will also speak, and the march will commence at approximately 1:30.

It will conclude at 2 at the YWCA, where the previously scheduled Week Without Violence kick-off event will take place from 2-6.

Organizers of the march include leaders from Muslim, Sikh, Christian, and Jewish faith communities. For information contact the Coalition for Peace Action, at 924-5022 or www.peacecoalition.org.

Americans United Flag Run to Pass Through New Jersey

Employees of American Airlines and United Airlines, and military service members, as a demonstration of American resolve and in support of the September 11, victims' families, will carry a United States flag across the country.

The flag, which was flown over Iraq in the cockpit of a U.S. F-16 in support of Operation Southern Watch on October 2, will leave Boston on Thursday, October 11, with a goal of arriving in Los Angeles on Veteran's Day, November 11.

These cities represent the origination and destination of American Flight 11 and United Flight 175.

The Americans United Flag Run will arrive in New Jersey on Saturday, October 13 at approximately 9 a.m. in Newark, and the run will proceed down Route 1 South, arriving in Princeton at approximately noon.

One runner at a time will carry the primary flag for approximately six miles at the speed of a 10-minute mile. However, other runners will be a part of the cross-country run.

While the event is intended to be a symbolic effort of support and unity, fundraising proceeds from this event will benefit selected charities in support of the victims of the tragedy on September 11. The flag will be carried around the clock to achieve this goal.

The route will proceed from Boston, through: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Washington, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Atlanta, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Albuquerque, Phoenix, and Los Angeles.

Financial assistance to help defray costs or other corporate resources to assist in the event is welcomed. Corporate support can be in the areas of communications, T-shirts, local transportation support to help ferry runners, or any other area.

More information on the Americans United Flag Run can be obtained through the web site, http://www.flagrun.org. Media contacts are preferred through the web site e-mail or by calling Paul Evanovich, American Airlines pilot and the Americans United Flag Run New Jersey coordinator, at 683-1767.

Bon Appetit Supports New Chef With WTC Fundraiser

Ann "Annie" Nina Prizzi was recently appointed as chef/manager with Bon Appetit Fine Foods in the Princeton Shopping Center.

"Unfortunately, the events of the last three weeks have affected, at least temporarily, the way many people are doing business," says Bon Appetit co-owner Deeann Lemmerling. "That includes us here at Bon Appetit. While we wanted to introduce everyone to our fabulous new chef, it just did not seem significant in the face of current events.

"It was only when we became aware of the "Windows of Hope" Fund that we saw the opportunity to honor Annie by joining her in supporting the victims of the World Trade Center tragedy.

On October 11, restaurants and food establishments throughout the world will donate a percentage of that day's sale to the Windows of Hope Family Relief Fund. Proceeds will benefit the families of victims in the food service profession who worked at the Trade Center complex, including the Windows on the World restaurant.

This is significant to Ms. Prizzi, as she spent 17 years at the renowned eatery, the last five as senior executive chef. "I loved every minute of the time I worked in New York, and nothing can tarnish those memories, but now we have to do something for those people's futures she says.

Her love of cooking is rooted in her childhood, where her first memories include helping her Italian grandmothers prepare their Sicilian specialties, many of which are included in her cookbook, Annie's Southern Italian Cooking.

It is one of those "simple but special" Sicilian dishes that she plans to include on the menu on Thursday, October 11. In memory of her lost colleagues, she will give all the proceeds of that specialty dish to the fund, along with Bon Appetit's contribution.

Back to the Grinder

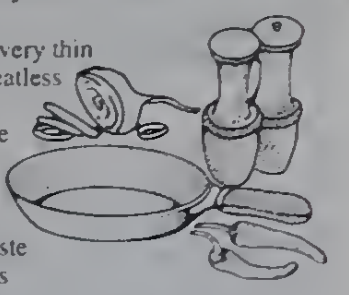
This recipe arose out of a wish to please my kid. After all, food that I'm happy to feed her ought to be a sure shot! I grabbed the ingredients off the shelves as I hurried to pick her up from one of her first days back at school. The entire meal took 15 minutes to prep and cook.

Serves 2 and is infinitely adjustable.



1 tbsp. olive oil
1-2medium onions, sliced very thin
4 Nate's Zesty Italian Meatless Meatballs
2 jalapeno peppers, whole or 1 colorful sweet pepper, sliced
2 tomatoes, sliced
Salt and black pepper to taste
2 Phoenician Bakery pitas
Plain yogurt

1. Heat a skillet over medium heat. Film skillet with olive oil so that the pan is evenly coated. Add onions, spreading them evenly over the pan. Cook for several minutes, stirring occasionally so that they don't stick to the pan.

2. Add meatballs to the pan. Add the peppers and put a lid on the pan to hold in the heat. Reduce the heat. Shaking the pan frequently, cook until the onions are transparent and the meatballs are heated through.

3. Season tomato slices with salt and pepper.

4. Place pitas on top of cooking food and replace lid. Heat for 3 minutes.

5. Place skillet in center of table and let everyone assemble their own sandwich by scooping the onion/meatball/pepper mixture into the warmed pitas. Add tomatoes, pour in yogurt, and eat!

Civil Rights Advocate Speaks at Princeton Day

"There's a battle going on in this country... and it's been going on long before September 11 The question is whose America is this?" said Morris S. Dees Jr. civil rights advocate and domestic terrors expert, to Upper School Princeton Day School students in an assembly on October 2.

In his speech Mr. Dees commented on tolerance in the country since the attacks on September 11. He said, "Three days after the tragedy, I was so proud to see that a cleric of Islamic descent was speaking at the National Cathedral, when, 50 years ago our reaction to Pearl Harbor was to put Japanese Americans in concentration camps."

He added, "We have, though, seen the good and the ugly side of our country in the last three weeks." As an example he recounted the shooting of a Sikh gasoline station attendant because he bore a loose resemblance to the alleged perpetrators of the September 11 attacks.

While recognizing how far the nation still needs to go to attain universal tolerance, Mr. Dees told of the great strides our nation has made towards tolerance since his youth. He said, "Our nation is great because of our diversity not in spite of it."

Following his speech, Mr. Dees held an open forum with the students.

Gwen Reed, PDS, diversity coordinator, organized the assembly called "Narrowing the Divide." In her introduction she said, "A bridge is a vehicle that gets you from where you are to where you'd like to be. More importantly, it is a conduit to narrow the divide. Mr. Dees is one man who for 25 years has looked towards narrowing that divide."

---

Mr. Dees is Chief Trial Counsel for the Southern Poverty Law Center. During the past 25 years, he has been involved in over 50 complex federal civil fights cases. In 1987, Mr. Dees secured a $7 million jury award in federal court"on behalf of a mother of a young black man lynched by the Ku Klux Klan. This verdict represented the first time that a Klan organization had been held liable for the violent acts of its members.

Trade Center Damage Assessed By Princeton Faculty

In the wake of the September 11 attack on the World Trade Center, a handful of Princeton University faculty and students quickly mobilized to help structural engineers assess damage at the site and in neighboring areas.

Just two days after the attack, the Structural Engineers Association of New York (SEAoNY) organized its members to work 24-hour shifts advising search and rescue teams and helping contractors with demolition and site safety.

The association was co-founded eight years ago by structural engineer and Princeton Associate Professor of Architecture Guy Nordenson, who has a firm in New York City.

"This effort continues with four SEAoNY teams of three structural engineers, each team from a firm, on 12-hour shifts," said Prof. Nordenson.

Prof. Nordenson is leading the building evaluation work and coordinating those efforts with an engineering firm co-owned by Charles Thornton, visiting lecturer in civil and environmental engineering.

Finding the most effective response to the urgent and drastic situation on September 11 was the biggest hurdle facing the structural engineers and architects, as it was for everyone dealing with the emergency. .This difficulty was compounded by the fact that the office of Guy Nordenson and Associates was just a block from ground zero.

It was crucial to quickly but thoroughly assess the extent of damage to buildings in Lower Manhattan. To do this, Prof. Nordenson turned to a resource that provided a solid foundation from which to work.

Earlier this year, he and fellow faculty member George Deodatis and Michael Tantala, a Ph.D. student in civil and environmental engineering, completed a study that determines the effects a medium-sized earthquake might have on Manhattan.

This research project, undertaken for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), created a database that describes the structure of every building in Manhattan. Although the stresses the buildings would have faced from an earthquake were quite different from the damage caused by the planes, the database was invaluable for providing information, already compiled and mapped, about hundreds of buildings in the area.

The study also outlines procedures for assessing damage to these buildings.

On September 15, Nordenson got the go-ahead from the mayor's Office for Emergency Management to proceed with the assessment. The 15 engineering teams inspected about 400 buildings in two days. Information from the inspections was then entered into a database at Princeton.

On September 19, Prof. Nordenson and his colleagues presented a list of damaged buildings — and the extent of the damage — to the New York City Department of Buildings and the NYC Department of Design and Construction.

About 30 buildings required a closer look, and new teams were fielded to go through a more detailed checklist prepared by the Princeton students.

By the end of that week, a full report rating the structural damage to 415 buildings was drawn up using the information gathered by all the teams. Mr. Tantala pointed out that the information will also "serve to further document the tragedy and aid FEMA in assessing the financial compensation for people in the area."

The constant activity in getting the job done for the Princeton volunteers did not diminish their emotional involvement in responding to the World Trade Center catastrophe.

Devastating Experience

On the one hand, Prof. Nordenson said, it was rewarding to be able to offer his skills in a time of need. "The experience is inspiring and unforgettable," he said, emphasizing the "compassion and courage all around."

On the other hand, being so close to the tragedy has been devastating for the volunteers. Mr. Tantala is constantly reminded of the people he knew who worked in the buildings.

To date, 11 Princeton alumni have been confirmed as victims of the terrorist attacks and several others remain missing.

"As I did this work and thought about the events, I was in shock about what had happened," said Mr. Tantala. "Many people died. Many of my friends were there. I was just eager to be able to help in any small way with this effort — even with just my numbers and words."

TAKE WING!

One of the newer shapes to come along in eyeglass frames is the butterfly. Otherwise known as the bow tie, it features an eyewire that is wider on the outside than on the inside. The popularity of the butterfly largely rests with consumers' interest in a shape that goes beyond the oval. The butterfly shape is both unique and striking. Its gentle angles that move outward and upward around the cheek and browline are particularly adept at offsetting a broad jaw line or triangle-shaped face. The butterfly can also add width to narrow, rectangular faces. And, a narrow butterfly frame can balance the cheekbones of a diamond-shaped face. At the very least, the butterfly shape is an attention-getting style.

Today's frames are as much a fashion statement as a way to correct a vision problem. People can select eyewear to satisfy their personal tastes about shape and color. At MONTGOMERY EYE CARE, we understand that frames are a highly individualized product. Regardless of your personal tastes or budget, we can help you select frames that flatter your appearance and fit properly on your face. Welcome the fall season with a new look. Call us at 609-279-0005, or visit us at Montgomery Center at 1325 Rt. 206 to browse through our optical display. Service and adjustment of glasses is complimentary for anyone who drops by.

P.S. While the butterfly shape in eyeglass frames was very popular during the 1970s, today's versions are much smaller.

University/Sarnoff

The February plan called for a development of 3.5 million square feet. This will now be reduced by 600,000 square feet, to 2.9 million. The total includes Sarnoff's existing main building, which contains approximately 750,000 square feet.

Roughly 3,000 additional new employees would be added at the project's buildout, although the actual number will depend on the type of usage of the space being developed. Approximately 750 employees currently work on the Sarnoff campus.

In making its purchase, the University would acquire the development rights attributable to the acres it would obtain, although it has no plans to develop those lands in the near future.

"We are not acquiring this land for commercial development," said Mr. Spies. "The sole reason for this is to achieve long-term flexibility for the expansion of the University's facilities and programs."

Mr. Spies emphasized that the University and Sarnoff were not announcing a sale, but rather an agreement to sell. "The actual sale is dependent on approval of the plan by West Windsor," he said.

Mr. Carnes said the plan was a win-win for Sarnoff, Princeton University, and West Windsor. "It will help Sarnoff conduct its business in a successful way and it addresses many of the concerns heard from West Windsor Township officials, which centered around the scope and pace of project development. The plan offers substantial relief in both areas."

Sarnoff plans to renovate and expand its facilities, in part to house venture companies as they are spun off. Office space is also expected to be leased to high-tech companies that serve the high-tech industry.

Mr. Spies noted that the site is directly across Route 1 from the University's existing 400-acre, still undeveloped, West Windsor property. The University also owns 500 acres in Princeton Borough and Township and 177 acres in Plainsboro.

Both Sarnoff and the University were supporters of the Millstone Bypass plan in which the proposed roadway cut through the Sarnoff campus. Discussions are currently under way at state and local levels that may lead to a different plan.

Mr. Spies said the outcome of these discussions will not have any impact on the agreement reached between the University and Sarnoff.

"No doubt the economic environment as it exists will have an impact on this," said Mr. Carnes. "If it lasts five years there will be a big impact. In one year, there will be hardly any impact. Right now now one knows."

He also said that if development plans are not approved, Sarnoff will have to determine whether it will be able to remain in West Windsor.

Mayor Shing-Fu Hsueh was one of a number of West Windsor Township officials present at the Monday afternoon press conference, held at Sarnoff, at which the agreement was announced.

He said, "We have had a very good working relationship [with Sarnoff] in the past 60 years. I don't see why we can't continue this. We will work closely with Princeton University and Sarnoff to come to a point where this will enhance the quality of life in West Windsor." —Myrna K. Bearse

Kudos to Photographer for Picture Of Shirley Tilghman's Installation

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Kudos to Town Topics and photographer Charles Phox for the wonderful first page picture on October 3. It shows the new president of Princeton University and the chairman of the Trustees' executive committee walking in the procession before the former's inauguration.

The beautiful glow on the face of President Shirley Tilghman and the happy smile on Chairman Robert Rawson bode well for the future of the University.

Township Engineer Has No Responsibility For Municipal Building Until Completion

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In a recent edition of your paper, Mr. Brian N. Dittrich castigated Princeton Township Committee for its performance regarding construction of the new municipal building [Town Topics, September 26]. Reading his letter I am uncertain as to whether he had the wrong numbers, the wrong township or both in mind. Taken together they had little relation to local reality. Assuming that he was indeed referring to Princeton Township, the facts are these.

The Township fired the construction general contractor for unsatisfactory work. Their surety company, Travelers, concurred in this action and it will result in no additional cost to the Township. His claim that the cost escalated from $9 million to $18 million is wildly inaccurate. Inasmuch as these figures have nothing to do with any bids involving the project, one cannot even speculate as to their source.

The Township has indeed provided $300,000 to cure the mold problem in a timely fashion, but they confidently expect to recover that entire sum from the insurance company and contracting parties involved in the project. This temporary advance is the only additional construction cost that the Township has incurred in the project. As to his alleged negligence of the Township Engineering Office in not cutting off the water and sealing the building last winter, during construction the building is the responsibility of the contractor, the Township does not have possession until it is satisfactorily completed and accepted.

Finally, before Mr. Dittrich faults others for fantasized mishandling of large projects he might well himself attend to the rather simple task of getting his facts straight for a letter to the editor. Township Committee has no responsibility for school construction beyond final inspection for conformance to the building code, and that will then be reviewed by the state. Other than that, local school construction is the responsibility of the Princeton Regional School Board. Perhaps they can look forward to Mr. Dittrich's similarly informed guidance when that project is launched.

Just What Kind of Senior Housing Is Township Ordinance Talking About?

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your article in the September 26 issue of Town Topics dealing with the Township's draft ordinance for a "retirement community overlay" zone at each of three locations in the Township, being presently considered by ZARC (the zoning amendment review committee) wasn't at all clear as to what kind of senior housing we are trying to get. In some places it refers to "residential retirement communities," other places "senior housing," further on to "single-family, two-family, or multi-family structures, or town houses." No where does it talk about a CCRC (Continuing Care Retirement Community), which is a very specific kind of community with the assisted living and nursing care units guaranteeing care until death. What is it exactly that we are talking about here? The Township committee must know what they are creating an "overlay ordinance" for, and the citizenry needs to know. It is not just a matter of finding the land and trying to attract developers.

If it is a CCRC they are talking about, we know the most successful CCRCs are non-profit. Besides knowing who's going to build it we need to know who's going to run it, that they have a good reputation for previous performance and that it will be affordable for the people in this community who need it.

If it is simply senior housing they are talking about, surely this resourceful and well-to-do community could come up with ways to build it in smaller than 200 units, in places with better access to town.

Before we paint ourselves into a corner with an overlay ordinance that becomes a welcome mat to any developer who comes along, wouldn't it be a good idea to make a study of exactly what it is we do need here and at what kind of price. Following that up with a more imaginative picking of brains for ways to make it work. The pay off has to be for the elderly of Princeton, not the developer.

Our experience with the aborted development at Our Lady of Princeton and the fact that Windrows, after all these years, and two bankruptcies, is still no where near full, should indicate to us that that is not the way to go.

MARY BUNDY
The Great Road

Editor's Note: The Township's draft ordinance for a "retirement community overlay" zone at each of three locations in the municipality — which is now under consideration by the zoning amendment review committee — would make it possible, if enacted, to build age-restricted, market-rate housing at any of the sites. The housing could be single-family, two-family, or multi-family. It could be townhouses or apartments. The ordinance does not specify exactly what kind of development would occur. There is no provision for assisted living or nursing care, such as one would find in a continuing care retirement community.

Violence Tends to Beget More Violence; Peace Marchers Seek to Break the Cycle

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Thank you for your coverage of the events of September 11 and its effects on our community, including responses such as the peace rally and march organized by the Princeton Peace Network on September 21.

Far from being an insult to those lost in the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and on the hijacked airplanes, I believe it honors their memories to record that not everyone believes a military response is appropriate or necessary. Indeed, a friend of mine whose husband is missing from the WTC has gone on record (ABC-TV, Friday, September 14) as saying that he would have been appalled to know that other lives might be taken in retaliation for his. I march for peace in his memory, in memory of another friend's son who died on United Airlines Flight 175, and in memory of all those who were killed, injured, or traumatized by the events of the 11th.

We must seek justice — but not the vigilante justice being pursued by the Bush administration — for those who conspired with the perpetrators of these horrific crimes. Dropping bombs is likely to cause more deaths of innocents and to inspire more hatred of the U.S. Violence tends to beget more violence; let us break the cycle.

VOTE FOR RESPONSIVE & RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT THAT CARES ABOUT PEOPLE IN PRINCETON BOROUGH.

VOTE MICHAEL CARNEVALE FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL.

MICHAEL CARNEVALE believes that the people of Princeton Borough deserve TAX FAIRNESS.

- $1 billion of the Borough's $2 billion assessed property value is Tax Exempt.
- Princeton University with an $8+ billion endowment owns almost $700 million of tax exempt property in Princeton Borough has never made a formal payment in lieu of taxes.
- Princeton University has made some gestures, including a new fire truck and ambulance.

Princeton Borough Mayor and Council do not currently negotiate with the University on payments in lieu of taxes, but must demand fairness. Princeton Borough Council must, and MICHAEL CARNEVALE will:

- Immediately and vigorously engage Princeton University and other large tax exempt property owners in discussions and negotiations to press those organizations to go beyond gestures and be fair to Princeton Borough tax payers by formalizing a payment in lieu of taxes program.
- Propose and lobby the legislature for State relief for the burden that State-mandated property tax exemption places on individual towns, such as Princeton.
- While the well-being of our town and the University are not mutually exclusive, it does require fairness.

Advocates of Non-Violent Solutions Are Not Indifferent to Survivors' Grief

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Kenneth Zoeller's letter (Town Topics, October 3) demonstrates a grievous misunderstanding of the views and motives of those who advocate a non-violent solution to the September 11 tragedy. Mr. Zoeller appears to assume that to advocate a non-violent solution is to advocate no action at all, demonstrating indifference to the profound suffering of the survivors and the bereaved.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. Many Princeton community members who are grieving deeply for the victims of the September 11 attacks are concerned to avoid creating more victims and more suffering. Clearly the perpetrators of these brutal acts of terror must be identified and stopped. The question is, what is the most effective way to do this?

Engaging in large-scale military action would be like throwing gasoline on a fire. If the United States kills innocent civilians and inflames further anti-U. S. sentiment, we will not be advancing the goal of stopping international terrorism.

To do justice to the memories of the victims of September 11, let us look for constructive, long-range, effective means of achieving an end to terrorism.

Vote Environment Committee Endorses Turner, Watson-Coleman, and Gusciora

To the Editor of Town Topics:

New Jersey Environmental Federation's bi-partisan political arm, the Vote Environment Committee (VEC), is pleased to announce Senator Turner and Assemblywoman Watson-Coleman and Assemblyman Gusciora as part of its 2001 Green Team.

All candidates portray themselves as environmentalists, but it's VEC's job to separate the solid leaders from the hollow followers. After careful scrutiny of past records, questionnaires and interviews VEC is confident that Senator Turner and Assemblywoman Watson-Coleman and Assemblyman Gusciora are indeed some of the solid leaders.

Gusciora was a sponsor of a bill to protect the coast by closing a loophole that promotes shore sprawl. Watson-Coleman has been an environmental watchdog on Appropriations committees. Turner has the best pro-environmental voting record in the state senate.

Together they have the most pro-environmental leislative district team in New Jersey. All three are in the top seven on NJEF's scorecard. They have led efforts to prevent the labeling of garbage incineration as a renewable energy source, have ensured open space funding goes where voters intended and have maintained public participation and cleanup standards at toxic site cleanups.

Turner, Watson-Coleman, and Gusciora's past efforts to protect the environment and their pledge to continue doing so make it clear that they are this year's environmental candidates for the 15th legislative district. I ask you to vote environment this November 6th and vote for Turner, Watson-Coleman, and Gusciora.

RCN Should Offer Basic Cable Service At Same Price as in Surrounding Towns

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is o copy of o letter to Connie Hughes, the Acting President of the Stote of New Jersey Boord of Public Utilities.

The Joint Princeton Cable TV Committee sincerely appreciates the efforts of the Board of Public Utilities to respond to the concerns of the Princeton community, and of other communities, about the unsatisfactory performance of RCN. We look forward to hearing the determination of the Board when you have received and reviewed the RCN plan to upgrade its plant and its capability to provide improved cable TV, internet and telephone services. The residents of the Princeton community wait with great anticipation to see the specifics of the most recent plan, having been promised an upgrade of the system within two years or less in May 2000. As you know, this promise was broken in March 2001.

The plan to be submitted by RCN will directly affect the Princeton community, and therefore we respectfully request that you instruct RCN to provide us with a copy of the plan at the same time that it is given to the Board.

Your referenced letter clearly supports an argument that I made in my testimony to the Board during your hearing in Princeton on September 6 on the subject of the rates charged by RCN for their basic service in Princeton versus surrounding communities. The rate for RCN's BST service in Princeton is $20.54. In all other communities served by RCN the BST rate is $14.80. While it is also clear that the cost per channel in Princeton is less than that in surrounding communities, and that RCN provides us with more channels than these communities, I believe that cost per channel is not the appropriate measure to use evaluating the cost of service. The cost per channel might be an appropriate measure if the consumer was afforded the opportunity to buy individual channels and not a package of channels. I am quite certain that many consumers in Princeton would opt to buy the 22 or 27 channels offered in other communities by RCN at a price of $14.80, rather than paying $20.54 for 50 channels. As a minimum, the consumers in Princeton should have this option.

Accordingly, the Joint Princeton Cable TV Committee requests that the Board of Public Utilities direct RCN to offer their 27 (or 22) channel service in the Princeton community at a price of $14.80 per month effective January 1, 2002. The channel mix to be offered in this reduced service tier is important, and we ask that the Princeton community be given a voice in the selection of the channels.

As you are aware, the franchise fee paid to Princeton Borough and Princeton Township by RCN is the major source of funding for the operation of the Princeton public access channel and is based on the revenues collected by RCN for only the "basic service." It would be reduced if this reduced service tier were to be considered to be the "basic service."

Therefore it is requested that the new reduced service tier not be considered to be the basis for the franchise fee, or that the franchise fee be adjusted so that the Princeton community does not receive less funding in future years as a result of the introduction of a new reduced service tier.

BERNIE MILLER
Chair, Joint Princeton Cable TV Committee

Those Who Have Lived Without Freedom Especially Cherish American Principles

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As an Egyptian American and a Muslim woman I do not know where to start. After all the tears there are still more tears ... endless tears. The overwhelming sadness, sadness for all the lives lost, sadness for the suffering and losses .... greater sadness for the young American lives yet to be lost.

More than anything is the sadness for the loss of hope in ever having peace and justice in this very fragile and yet arrogant world we live in. Some work hard for justice and peace ... social justice, racial justice, economic justice and political justice. Sadness and sorrow for their fruitless efforts. Sadness and sorrow for all those who do not know the world around them and even greater sorrow for their lack of true desire to know. Sadness and sorrow for forgetting that first and foremost we have to relate to each other as human beings. Sadness for our inability to rise above our pride in a particular faith we hold, a nationality, a race and/or ethnicity.

For those who lost loved ones in this hateful act of evil, no good can come of it. For the rest of us, though overcome by pain and grief, maybe we can be moved to spend time learning and rising about our prejudices. If we do not, then we are no better then those who took their prejudice, ignorance and consequent hate to the extreme. I can't stop wondering about all the good that could have been accomplished if the terrorists had spent all these resources — time, energy and determination — on promoting better understanding between people in the world. I am now afraid that less and less resources will go for that and their act of evil will only bring about more devastation and hate.

As difficult as it may be for some or for all to believe, we Arab Americans love this country more than many who have been here for decades before us. We love this country because we cherish and hold dear to our hearts the values and principles this country lives by: freedom of speech, democracy, equal protection under the law and religious freedom, etc. We feel stronger about these values because we came from countries where citizens are deprived of all these rights and privileges. We are willing to fight harder for these beliefs. We raise our children to work harder, to set a good example of morality and never to take anything for granted. My heart truly bleeds for this country of ours, America, and I hope we do not self-destruct.

Throughout this ordeal, for the most part, people have been decent, very cordial, compassionate and supportive, but I am also very cognizant of some emotions getting in the way of some people's ability to overlook my middle-eastern origin.

I forgive it and pray that the terrorists (whoever they may be) cannot divide us as Americans and, more importantly, as good human beings.

God grant our government the wisdom and patience to find the way to bring peace to the world.

Race for the Cure Participant Will Run In Memory of BCRC's Ginny Hendrickson

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It was in September 1996 that I wrote a letter describing the emotional impact of running my first Race for the Cure the previous fall. In that letter I talked about the humility of the experience, a part of which had to do with a woman who was a member of my church but whom I had never gotten to know very well. She was cheering me on, taking my picture crossing the finish line, and telling others how great it was that I was running the race. Much later, at the end of the morning, I ran into her again and she told me that her breast cancer had metastasized to the bone but she was "feeling fine and carrying on with life." I noted the embarrassment of her applauding me.

The woman was Ginny Hendrickson, founder of The Breast Cancer Resource Center, here in the Princeton YWCA. In the subsequent years I would include Ginny in the growing list of breast cancer survivors I ran "in honor of." This year I run "in memory of" Ginny for she passed away this past March.

The BCRC has grown to provide a host of psycho-social, educational and referral resources. Now under the superb leadership of Jane Rodney and Nancy Healy it is a highly visible and valued agency in our community to help all whom are touched by breast cancer. Ginny's initial vision and persistence created the organization which now Jane and Nancy continue to creatively expand and develop. One of their most vital involvements is their sponsorship of the upcoming Race.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation is an international organization which funds research, education, screening and treatment of breast cancer. The Komen NJ Race for the Cure proceeds are divided, with 25 percent donated to the national research program and 75 percent helping the medically underserved here in New Jersey.

You can run the 5K race, walk a mile or pledge your support to one who is in your place. This is my seventh year of running the race. I am no more a runner than when I started. But I am more humbled than ever. This year I run honoring, with awe, 14 survivors I know personally and all those unknown to me but in our midst. And I run, with love and gratitude, in memory of Ginny.

Opinions on How to Combat Terrorism May Differ Without Being 'Unpatriotic'

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Re. October 3 letters to the editor (Kenneth Zoeller and Paul Lorenza) about the September 21 Peace Rally.

I address this letter to the two letter writers in the October 3 Town Topics who seem to believe that anyone holding opinions different from their own concerning methods to combat terrorism are unpatriotic and unconcerned about its victims.

It's one thing to characterize people whose opinions who don't share as "misguided"; it's quite another to claim that you and those who share your viewpoint are, ipso facto, better, more compassionate citizens.

Propose and Background: As required by the rules of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP), Green Acres Program, Princeton Borough Council will hold the public hearing to obtain testimony from the public on the Princeton Borough proposal to request that NJDEP, Green Acres Program amend and correct the Princeton Borough's Recreation and Open Space Inventory (ROSI) by deleting Block 1.01, Lot 4. ## Moslem Terrorist Elements Reject All of Western Society, Not Just Israel

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In your issue of October 3, Hope Cobb's letter as much as blames U.S. support of Israel, the only democratic state in the Middle East, for the existence of widespread terrorist elements within the Moslem world and the justification of the horrific events of September 11. Such a misguided and factually inaccurate assessment of the Palestinian-Israeli conflict can only serve to harm U.S. foreign policy interests throughout the world during a time when the world is being assailed by the same radical fundamentalist elements that are inhibiting Moslem enjoyment of the advantages of 21st century society.

Indeed, the same terrorist elements that undergird Hamas, Islamic Jihad, and Hezbollah as well as corrupt elements of the Arafat government, also support and work with Sadam Hussein and Osama bin Laden's Al Qaeda; and it was elements of these same groups that were responsible for the assassination of President Anwar Sadat in Egypt for making peace with Israel, and much earlier for the assassination of King Abdullah of Jordan for agreeing to negotiate and work with the Jews of the Palestine mandate.

So, in fact, nothing has changed since well before the U.S. developed an interest in the stability of the State of Israel; and it is these same radical Moslem groups that recently opposed the completion of negotiations between Ehud Barak and Yasser Arafat based upon an Israeli offer so generous that such conditions are not likely to again provide a basis for an Israeli-Palestinian peace.

Over the years, American support of Israel has been based on a combination of American idealism and enlightened self-interest. No American president has ever bowed to Israeli pressure to reject Palestinian nationalism. To accuse the U.S. of providing unreasonable support for maintaining a stable Israeli state with defensible borders in the midst of an overwhelming Arab Middle East is like accusing the U.S. of supporting Irish republicanism in Northern Ireland.

Moreover, were the U.S. to force Israel to meet extremist Palestinian terrorist demands for the "right of return" of all Palestinians who fled Israel in 1948, when they were invited to stay at the time, but chose instead to join the Arab armies invading the new Israel formed by decision of the United Nations, is to condemn the existence of a land based upon enlightened Jewish tradition and western democratic ideals and religious freedom.

These considerations have been well understood by all Democratic and Republican Administrations ever since Harry Truman recognized the State of Israel 53 years ago. Surely to alter this view now would harm the credibility of US foreign policy and play into the hands of those reactionary elements within the Moslem nations that seek the rejection of western principles of religious and political freedom without regard for ethnicity or gender.

DROUGHT and its effects have become quite noticeable throughout many areas of the state. Look for yellowing of leaves and early leaf drop in many trees, especially mature trees, such as tulip poplar, London plane and sycamore.

Usually the oldest leaves on a branch are shed in order to conserve water. Also, when trees have greater than normal moisture and fertility, they tend to send out more foliar growth.

...

The roots may not be able to support all this growth when the roots are dry, thus more shedding. Excess foliage results in more shading and trees will drop inner leaves that aren't contributing as much to the tree. Look for browning of the edges of foliage, called marginal leaf scorch.

...

Some fungi take advantage of drought weakened plants. A good example is the pathogen Botryosphaeria, which attacks mature rhododendron, azalea, dogwood and redbud, causing dieback of usually one branch at a time.

...

Prune out these dying branches to prevent its spread, and mulch, irrigate and fertilize. In general, landscape plants should receive a minimum of one inch of water a week, when rain does not occur.

Knitting, Quilting and Needlepoint Are Pins and Needles' Specialties

It may be a surprise to some, but not to the eager knitters, quilters, and needlepointers in the area. Indeed, one of the hottest places in town is Pins and Needles, the new shop offering knitting, quilting, and needlepoint supplies.

Customers can't seem to get enough of this fun shop, featuring an array of bright colors, open space, and frtendly, knowledgeable service.

"Quilting and knitting, especially, enjoyed a huge upsurge in the past few years," notes co-owner Kathleen Gittleman. "But there has been an inability to find nice fabrics, yarn, and needlepoint supplies in town."

IT'S NEW To Us

Adds co-owner Rachel Herr: "If you enjoy working with color and fiber and fabric, it's been a huge frustration not to have access to it. A lot of people wouldn't deal with the inconvenience of going a long way for yarn, etc."

---

This need prompted Ms. Gittleman and Ms. Herr to take action.

"Kathleen had been thinking about doing something like this," explains Ms. Herr. "Our kids were in school, and she knew I was a knitter. It has been a good meshing of skills. We complement each other. Kathleen is the quilter, I am the serious knitter, and we both do needlepoint."

Upstairs & Downstairs

The space at 8 Chambers Street was available, and with an upstairs and downstairs, it was a perfect spot to display the selection of yarn, quality cotton fabrics for quilting, bedding, slipcovers, curtains, etc., handpainted needlepoint canvasses, wools and cottons for needlepoint. A big variety of notions, such as knitting and sewing needles, thread, pins, scissors, buttons, rotary cutters for quilting, ribbon, patterns and instruction books, is also on hand.

"There has been such a void for quality ribbon," points out Ms. Herr. "We have more ribbon coming in, including hand-dyed silk and traditional."

Customers, who are from all over the area, including scores from Princeton, are all ages and levels of skill.

"We have kids, college students, adults, ladies from Meadow Lakes, and many are already regulars!" report Ms. Gittleman and Ms. Herr, both Princeton residents. "They are beginners to those who have knitted all their life. Also, there is a large European community here, and they are often accomplished knitters."

Reflective Activity

Knitting supplies have been especially popular, and this has remained true during the days and weeks after September 11. People seem to want a quiet, comforting activity, note the partners.

"Knitting is a quiet, reflective activity," explains Ms. Gittleman. "It's a repetitive motion that is very calming. It is said to be an endorphin-releasing activity. Quilting, on the other hand, requires more planning and a mountain of focus."

---

After the first of the year, Pins and Needles will offer a full class instruction schedule in knitting, quilting, and needlepoint, and in the meantime, Ms. Gittleman and Ms. Herr are very willing to help people informally.

"We get people started on a simple scarf, for example, and we will help anyone finish anything they're working on, even if they didn't get it here," says Ms. Herr, who learned to knit as a child, taught by her grandmother. Sample squares of yarn are on display, as is a variety of sweaters she has made.

ON PINS AND NEEDLES: "There was a large group of people waiting for us to open. We are really filling a need. Many customers come in and say, 'I'm so glad you're here.'" Kathleen Gittleman (left) and Rachel Herr, owners of Pins and Needles, stand near the yarn selection at their very popular store.

"Scarves and sweaters are the most popular projects for people now," she notes, "and we have a nice mix of fibers, including silk, cotton, wool, cashmere, and some novelty yarns, such as Trendsetter "Shadow" and "Eyelash."

"The yarn runs from very basic to very unusual. We also have wonderful sock and mitten yarn coming in, and a yarn that, as you knit, automatically makes a stripe."

---

Among those available are yarns from Rowan, Norro, Dale, Classic Elite, and a new line by Debbie Bliss, as well as others, starting at $5.

Knitting needles include metal circular, bamboo straight and circular, and Casein from Australia.

The cotton fabrics for quilting and other purposes are truly a vision of color. Beautiful bright prints, plaids, stripes, and solids are in every shade of the rainbow, but with an emphasis on brights.

"People love the fabrics," says Ms. Herr. "There is no place around that has the brights and the less traditional. We also offer fat quarters."

Fabric includes Westminster, Alexander Henry, and P & B, among others, starting at $6 to $8 a yard.

Needlepointers are pleased to know that the shop offers full finishing, including framing. Patterns are available for everything from footstools to Christmas ornaments and Christmas stockings. There are also special children's patterns. Waverly tapestry wool, Pearl cotton and floss from Anchor, and Kreinik metallic yarns are offered.

Lifelong Pursuit

There is a great sense of camaraderie among the customers who come in. They enjoy the opportunity to exchange ideas, as they gather around the large measuring, cutting and demonstration tables, adds Ms. Gittleman, who learned to sew as a child and has made many of her own clothes and those of her children.

"This has been a lifelong pursuit for me. There is something very comforting about making a product with your own hands. It is truly one-of-a-kind, and there is a great sense of accomplishment."

Both she and Ms. Herr are delighted with the response to the shop and look forward to seeing it grow and evolve.

"We love to see people come in and to help them with a project. We are happy to provide this service to people who have missed it. And if they haven't been doing it for a while, they can start again.

---

"And, especially, we want this to be a fun place to visit, to have it be a pleasure to come here."

Pins and Needles offers gift certificates (charming quilt squares listing the amount), and is open Tuesday through Friday 10 to 5, Saturday 11 to 4. 921-9075.

SweeTrees for Every Occasion Are One-of-a-Kind Creations

What is a SweeTree? It is certainly unique. It is certainly eye-catching, and it is certainly imaginative.

The creative endeavor of Princeton resident Pamela Groves, this free-standing decorative tree is a welcome artistic piece for many occasions, and is a unique addition to one's home or office.

---

"I'm really partial to making the home a place for creative expression," says Ms. Groves, who was born in Jamaica, and came to the U.S. when she was 19.

"I love the idea of people using their houses in more and more creative ways — that, whether it's a small apartment or a grand estate, they are capable and interested in creating a special ambiance and able to influence their surroundings with their own fingerprints. I like to feel I am helping with my SweeTrees."

Artistic Bent

Ms. Groves, who is also a children's librarian at the Public Library of Princeton, has always had an artistic bent. She took drawing classes, and over the years, made a variety of handcrafted items.

"I've always enjoyed making things," she explains. "I did silk painting, and created handmade calendars and special family newsletters. I often gave my handmade items as gifts, and people liked what I did."

SweeTrees had an unusual beginning, she notes, and it was all tied up with the arrival of a new cat into her life. As she recalls, "Ideas come at unexpected moments. So too do cats, it seems. SweeTree, the idea, and SweeTree, the cat arrived on the same June star amid the fireflies on a dark night.

"On this night, I noticed that an unfamiliar cat sat looking through the garden gate with an air of belonging. 'I'm here,' she seemed to say. 'Don't you remember me?'

"In the twinkling of an opaque eye, I forgot my miserable allergies, not to mention my overall discomfort with cats and let her in. She made herself at home, and I named her SweeTree and call her Sweetie for short."

As the idea for SweeTree (the tree) took shape it became "Celebration Art" for Ms. Groves — "art that embraces ritual, that celebrates beauty," she explains. "And within the umbrella of Celebration Art, I designed the SweeTree, incorporating strands of tiny lights, to celebrate light. People have always found ways to light the darkness.

Different Materials

"I start with the frame," she continues, "and then I use many different materials, including branches, berries, ribbons, silk and paper flowers, among others. I really love to work with unique color combinations, and I love the play of light, texture, and form."

SweeTrees come in three sizes — "Papa," "Mama" and "Baby," and are available for different seasons and many holidays, such as Halloween, Harvest, Christmas, Kwanzaa, New Year's, Valentine's Day, Easter, etc. They can be custom designed and personalized for weddings, graduations, birthdays and more.

---

"I have also recently been doing a number of patriotic peace designs, featuring red, white and blue lights, that serve as acknowledgment of this very difficult period we are in," adds Ms. Groves.

A favorite project was a personalized tree for a new baby. "The family decided to make it the baby's 'Birthday Tree', and bring it out every year on her birthday. I was so touched," she confides.

Although many of the trees are designed for special occasions, they do not always have a theme and can be a wonderful every day treat.

They are appropriate for display in many parts of the house or office, including as centerpiece on the table, as a welcoming note in the foyer, and even among indoor plants (there is a special Spring/Gardening tree).

Creative Interpretatian

"People enjoy the trees because they really are one-of-a-kind," says Ms. Groves. "Some people like to give me their special items, such as ornaments, even napkin rings, and I can incorporate these into the design.

"Also, you can change the decorations on the tree. It can have your own creative interpretation. And some people like to get different ones and sizes and build a collection.

In addition to the trees (also including outdoor models), Ms. Groves creates SweeT-Wreaths and SweeTBundles, the latter small decorative pieces suitable for window display. At $15, they make a charming hostess gift.

SweeTrees, which can be free-standing or hanging, range from $70 to $130, and wreaths are $80 to $95. The trees can also be rented.

---

"The making of SweeTrees has brought about much happiness," reports Ms. Groves. "Thomas C. Perks, my 91-year-old neighbor, came into the business riding his wheelchair, full of anticipation that he was in some way returning to work.

"He graciously shared his barn with me for use as my workshop. It had been the site of his own home-based masonry business of 50-plus years. Tom removed many of the strings of lights from their fortress-like packaging, making my job infinitely easier.

"My 19-year-old son, Karim, also helps out with preparations.

"I share with you this story because as we explore our creativity, we find ourselves embracing life at its best."

Ms. Groves' SweeTrees have been on display at Small World Coffee on Witherspoon Street and Vis a Vis Salon on Palmer Square. On November 9 and 10, she will have an exhibit and sale at the Arts Council.

Baby SweeTrees are also available for sale on line at festivetrees.com

"I really enjoy everything about doing this," smiles Ms. Groves. "It's wonderful that people like them, and they can use them for their own creative expression. Change the decoration when the fancy takes you! Use it to recreate the magic of each season around your home and business — every day, and at all of the holidays and special occasions."

Ms. Groves' showroom is open at selected times, and hours are by appointment. 924-7663. —Jean Strattan

"CELEBRATION ART": "I had the idea of making free-standing holiday creations, and I call it 'Celebration Art'." Pamela Groves, owner of Voila Festive Creations, is shown with one of her handcrafted SweeTrees, a unique decorative tree, featuring a variety of materials and tiny sparkling lights.

FOR ALL SEASONS: Sweetrees can be used for many different occasions and purposes, says their designer Pamela Groves. This tree, featuring small pear and star decorations, has been called the "Comfort" tree.

MUSIC REVIEW

Virtues of Baroque Viol Demonstrated In Dryden Ensemble's Sunday Concert

The Dryden Ensemble presented a concert in Richardson Auditorium Sunday extolling the virtues of the Baroque viol. The five-member ensemble performed eight works of diverse character, mostly featuring the two viol players of the ensemble, but also demonstrating the capabilities of other instruments.

The concert opened and closed with the music of Marin Marais, who was a virtuoso on the bass viol, and whose music clearly demonstrated his sensitivity to the technical capabilities of the instrument. The first two pieces, as well as the piece that closed the concert, featured viol players Lisa Terry, playing a seven-string bass viol, and Emily Walhout, playing a six-string bass viol. Webb Wiggins' subtle but accurate harpsichord accompaniment added to the pleasing sonority. Throughout these pieces, as well as the rest of the concert, Ms. Terry and Ms. Walhout demonstrated that their roles as viol players were interchangeable — either could take the lead melodically or provide the solid underpinning needed to support the other two players of the ensemble, violinist Rachel Evans and Baroque oboist Jane McKinley.

Complex Piece

The most complex piece of the program was Arcangelo Corelli's La Follia, a compositional framework used for sets of variations. In this case, Ms. Walhout provided the chord that was the basis for the variations, and Ms. Terry provided the actual variations and ornamentation. Ms. Walhout and Mr. Wiggins were consistently together throughout the constantly changing piece. Ms. Terry's playing was decisive, while Ms. Walhout paid particular attention to the ends of phrases and cadences, again demonstrating the variety of playing possible on the viol.

Johann Sebastian Bach's Sonata in G Minor, for solo viol and harpsichord continuo, was the most obviously advanced piece contrapuntally. This work was actually a trio for each manual of the harpsichord and the viol, and was tailor-made for the instruments being played.

Ms. Walhout and Mr. Wiggins were perfectly together at all times, with Ms. Walhout providing especially mellow playing during the second movement "Adagio."

The piece which followed, George Frederick Handel's Sonata in G Minor, featured Ms. McKinley, Ms. Evans, and Ms. Terry with harpsichord accompaniment. This piece, as would be expected from Handel, was much more vocal in nature, with long lines between the violin and oboe. Rounding out the concert nicely was Johann Jacob Froberger's Suite in C for solo harpsichord and François Couperin's La Sultane, scored for oboe, violin, two viols and continuo. One does not often get to hear the continuo player featured as a soloist, and it was a treat to hear Webb Wiggins explore the range of the instrument through this four-movement work.

Mr. Wiggins' replication of an 18th-century harpsichord has a mellow sound, without the overly shrill brilliance that can affect harpsichords, and Mr. Wiggins gave a solid demonstration of what the harpsichord can do. Music of the late 17th and early 18th centuries can shift quickly from melancholy to bright, and Mr. Wiggins handled these changes adeptly.

The Couperin work demonstrated the sonorities among all the instruments, especially the violin and oboe playing in thirds over a viol drone. The ensemble achieved very effective dynamic contrasts, and after a first half of relatively dark pieces, ended this work on a chipper note.

The Dryden Ensemble was small in number on Sunday afternoon, but rich on sonority from their five varied instruments. The two viols in particular had unique sounds, and the audience was able to come away from Sunday's concert having learned about a few revived pieces from the Baroque ear.

The Dryden Ensemble will present its next concert in Princeton on Sunday, January 27, in Richardson Auditorium. Featured in this concert will be the music of Handel's Italian Days, including vocal arias performed by mezzo-soprano Barbara Hollinshead. For ticket information call the Richardson box office at 258-5000.

New Take on "Pippin" Due at Westminster

Stephen Schwartz's hit musical Pippin will run at Westminster Choir College from October 11 to 14. This popular musical is based on a young man's pursuit of identity and meaning in life.

In 1972, at the age of 24, Mr. Schwartz found himself teaming with renowned director and choreographer Bob Fosse to produce Pippin, which was soon to become an overnight success.

The Actor's Company at Westminster will premiere something a little different. In the words of company founder and artistic director Nathan Brewer, "The Actor's Company and I have made some very bold choices in our rendition of Pippin.

I'm very excited about what has come from our take of this production. The Leading Player, and her faithful disciples of temptation, take Pippin on a ride very much like the traditional script calls for, but in a way that the story has never been staged before.

Anyone who has seen this musical is in for an interesting treat. Anyone who hasn't will still enjoy a musical to which everyone can relate."

In addition to company members comprised of Westminster, Rider, and Princeton university students, the production will include local talents from the Princeton community, including Ben Taub (as young Pippin) and Daniel Taub (as Theo), sons of Robert and Tracy Taub; Diana Crane (as Berthe), Professor of Arts & Sciences; and Charles Pratt (production manager), son of Dan and Suzan Pratt, Professors of Voice.

STARRING ROLE: Scott Dispensa plays the lead role in the Westminster Choir College production of the musical "Pippin" scheduled for October 11-14 at 8 p.m. in the Playhouse on the college's campus.

---

Showtimes are Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, October 11-14 at 8 p.m. in the Playhouse on the campus of Westminster Choir College, 101 Walnut Lane. Tickets are $5 for students, $10 for adults and may be purchased at the door.

For more information, check www.actorscompany.org. Note that this production of Pippin is not recommended for children.

"Phantom of the Opera" At University Chapel

Back by popular demand, the original 1925 silent film Phantom of the Opera, with live organ accompaniment, will be presented at the Princeton University Chapel on Friday, October 12 at 9 p.m. Principal University Organist David Messineo will once again create and provide the accompaniment.

The classic film, starring Lon Chaney as the Phantom, is based on Gaston Leroux's immortal horror novel. The plot revolves around the mysterious masked phantom of the Paris Opera House, who falls in love with the beautiful young soprano Christine Daae.

The chilling sensations and sensual moments in the story are augmented by the varied tone colors of the organ as Mr. Messineo enhances the drama that unfolds on the silent screen. "Most of the music is improvisation, although certain characters like the Phantom have a theme," states Messineo.

"The most dramatic scene of the movie occurs when Christine removes the Phantom's mask and the music builds and builds as the Phantom goes into his frantic rage."

Before coming to Princeton over a year ago, Mr. Messineo served for 16 years as minister of music at the Glen Ridge Congregational Church, where he played the organ and directed seven choirs. He also has been a professor of organ at Montclair State University for the past 12 years.

He has won the American Guild of Organists New York City Chapter Competition three times and has twice been a finalist in the national competition.

Admission to the concert is $10, students $8. For further information, call 609-258 3654.

University Orchestra Opens '01-02 Season At Richardson

The Princeton University Orchestra, Michael Pratt, conductor, will open its 2001-2002 Season with Richardson Auditorium performances at 8 p.m. on Friday, October 19 and Saturday, October 20.

The program opens with the Overture to Hansel and Gretel by Engelbert Humperdinck. Including the most famous tunes of the opera, the overture is cloaked in Humperdinck's rich Romantic texture and language.

In December, the University Orchestra will present the entire opera in concert, with solo roles being taken by voice faculty from Princeton University and Westminster Choir College.

---

Aaron Copland's Appalachian Spring is one of the best-known American symphonic works. Originally composed for the choreographer Martha Graham, the music was first scored for chamber ensemble. When the work achieved international popularity, Copland recast it for full orchestra, revealing himself as one of the century's most astute orchestrators.

---

Following intermission, the program concludes with the Symphonic Dances of Sergei Rachmaninoff, about which Mr. Pratt observes: "This is the last work of Rachmaninoff, always the popular 'big time' composer, who is undergoing a resurgence of respectability even from the musical intelligentsia.

---

He was not only the quintessential neo-Romantic, he was a weaver of dazzling and delicate textures, unsurpassed in craftsmanship."

Tickets to the concerts, priced at $15; students, $5; are available from the Richardson Auditorium Box Office, 258-5000.

STARS OF GALA: Betty Buckley and Michael Feinstein, center, starred in McCarter Theatre's gala benefit held on Saturday. Co-chairs for the gala were Pamela Ugiletta of Princeton and William F. Hackett of Belle Mead. The event marked a return engagement for both performers — Ms. Buckley starred in the world premiere of "The Perfectionist" by Joyce Carol Oates, directed by Emily Mann in 1993; and Mr. Feinstein last appeared in concert on the McCarter stage in 1988. The annual gala supports the artistic and educational programs at McCarter.

Folk Music Society Plans David Buskin Concert

The Princeton Folk Music Society will present a performance by singer-songwriter David Buskin at 8:15 p.m. Friday, October 19 at Christ Congregation Church, 50 Walnut Lane, Princeton.

He writes and performs humorous and political songs, and has been a folk musician, a rock musician, a songwriter for other performers, and a composer of commercial jingles.

---

He was a high-school senior in New York when he discovered the Greenwich Village club scene. He purchased a guitar, took lessons, and learned folk songs.

While studying at Brown University in the '60s, Mr. Buskin supplemented his income by playing in various folk and rock bands. He moved to the Berklee School of Music in Boston, where he began to write songs.

He composed a number of songs for Mary Travers, and traveled with her as an opening act. He toured with the rock group Pierce Arrow, and recorded two albums with them.

In that band he met and formed a duo with Ivy League folk singer Robin Batteau. Together they issued three albums.

---

He has been profiled in People and Time magazines, and has been featured on The Today Show and Entertainment Tonight. In 1999 he was presented with the World Folk Music Association's prestigious Kate Wolf award.

Admission is $12; $8 for members of the Folk Music Society and affiliate organizations, and $3 for children age 11 and under. There are no advance sales; ample free parking is available.

The next event in this concert series will be a performance by David Massengill on November 16. For further information about these and other Folk Music Society events, call 799-0944.

Work by Haydn Begins Season Of Musical Amateurs

The first session of the 66th season of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will be a reading of Haydn's Paukenmesse (Mass in Time of War), with orchestra, at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14.

The session, conducted by Devin Mariman, will be held at the Princeton Unitarian Church on Cherry Hill Road near the intersection with Route 206. There are no rehearsals, scores are provided, and all singers are welcome to attend, whether of much or little singing experience. Light refreshments will be served.

---

The soloists for the work are: Rebecca Mariman, soprano, Erika Dettra, alto, Adam Phillips, tenor, and Douglas Millar, bass.

---

Founded by Prof. Roy Dickinson Welch, the first chairman of the Princeton University Music Department, as an informal group of about 20 singers meeting in the home of Mrs. Katharine Bryan, Musical Amateurs has been in its present format of monthly meetings held at Princeton Unitarian Church from October through May, for many years.

While the chorus is amateur and usually numbers 75-100, the orchestra is semi-professional, and the conductors and soloists are professional.

Annual membership of $30 includes admission to all seven monthly Musical Amateurs sessions and postcard notification of each session. Patron membership of $50 includes a tax-deductible contribution.

Single session admission is $7 for singers, mostly to cover the cost of the music and the church rental; listening is free although a contribution is requested towards the refreshments.

---

The November 11 session will be the Mozart Mass in C-Minor, conducted by Daniel Beckwith; and the December 9 session will be the Bach Magnificat and Vivaldi Gloria with David Klmock conducting.

The schedule for the year is available at www.princetonol.com/groups/psma. For further information, call 587-6387.

PIANIST TO PERFORM BENEFIT: Pennington School junior Alexandra Kozlov, of Princeton, will perform a concert at the Pennington Presbyterian Church on October 15 to aid New York City relief efforts.

Young Pianist to Give Benefit for Relief Efforts

In response to the recent tragic events in New York City, noted young pianist Alexandra Kozlov, a Princeton resident and 14-year-old Pennington School junior, will present a recital on Monday, October 15 at 7:30 p.m. to benefit relief efforts there.

The concert, which will include classical selections from Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt, as well as American patriotic songs, will be held at the Pennington Presbyterian Church and is open to the public.

Members of the audience will be asked to make a free-will donation. All funds collected will be forwarded to the American Red Cross, designated specifically for New York City relief.

Ms. Kozlov, who has performed often in recitals at Steinway Hall and at the Weill Recital Hall of Carnegie Hall in New York, was deeply distressed by the destruction and loss of life in that city. "I felt that I had to do whatever I could do to help," she says.

She approached Pennington arts department chair William Alford with the idea of a benefit concert.

---

Ms. Kozlov began playing the piano at age 6; she performed in her first public recital six months later. The next year she was accepted into the Honors Program for Gifted Students of the Mannes College of Music in New York, where she continues to study.

At age 8, Ms. Kozlov performed a Haydn concerto with the Mannes chamber players and soon afterward was selected for the French documentary Les Petits Mozart.

At age 10, selected by audiotape, she became the youngest participant in the history of the Canadian International Music Festival at the Centre d'Arts Orford. One leading musician commented, "Alexandra Kozlov possesses a true musicality and great natural technique that allows her to cope with the most complicated pieces ever written for piano."

---

In addition to returning frequently to the international festival in Canada, Ms. Kozlov has also participated in international festivals in Italy. She was featured several years ago on Philadelphia's WPVI-TV Channel 6.

This summer, she played in the opening concert of the Bowdoin International Music Festival in Maine.

Several other Pennington students will perform to complement Ms. Kozlov's musical selections.

Passage Theater Plans Production Of New Musical, "The Book of Candy"

Author Susan Dworkin has recast her novel, The Book of Candy, into a musical that will open October 19 at the Mill Hill Playhouse in Trenton, with a preview performance October 18. The work is a co-production of Passage Theatre of Trenton and Playwrights Theatre of New Jersey in Madison.

Named "Woman of the Year" by the New Jersey Legislature in 1998, Ms. Dworkin collaborated with composer Mel Marvin (Tintypes, Yentl, A History of American Film) on The Book of Candy, which will be directed by Ahvi Spindell in its world premiere performance.

---

Ms. Dworkin's novel was voted one of the year's ten best in 1996 by the Providence Journal and was hailed by the Washington Post, Entertainment Weekly and the Women's Review of Books. In 1998, The Book of Candy received staged readings at McCarter Theatre in Princeton.

Ms. Dworkin and Mr. Marvin, along with Mr. Spindell, then began fine-tuning the script with a commitment to bring the show to production.

A modern suburban parallel to the biblical Book of Esther, this contemporary musical — complete with Klezmer band on stage — tells the story of a woman whose values are ridiculed, whose intellect is wasted and whose power is ignored.

In dealing with a wise but pontificating mother, a philandering gynecologist husband, an Israeli moving man lover, friends in politics and an admirer in the Mob, Candy manages to shatter cultural stereotypes to become her unique self. Eventually she faces a choice between achieving her personal dreams and saving lives in her community.

Ms. Dworkin wrote the HBO documentary She's Nobody's Boby, which earned the Peabody Award.

Passage Theatre Artistic/Producing Director June Ballinger warns audiences that this musical challenges stereotypes and speaks to the experience of community and family. "The characters are funny, utterly human and tremendously moving."

The Book of Candy is suitable for ages 13 and above. Performances begin Thursday, October 18, and run through Thursday, October 25.

Tickets are $20 for weekday and matinee performances, $25 for Friday and Saturday night performances, and $35 for October 19, Opening Night (includes reception following the performance).

---

All performances will be held at the Mill Hill Playhouse on Front and Montgomery streets in Trenton. There is ample secure, free parking across the street.

For more information about this or other Passage Theatre productions, directions or a season brochure, contact the Passage Theatre Company at 392-0766 or visit the Website at www.passagetheatre.org.

Repertory Ballet Begins Season On October 19

Families and children are invited to enjoy special programming which will accompany the premiere performances of American Repertory Ballet.

ARB will present Maurice Sendak's Where the Wild Things Are and Graham Lustig's A Midsummer Night's Dream on Friday, October 19 at 7 p.m. and Saturday, October 20 at 2 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. at the State Theatre in New Brunswick, and on Saturday, November 3 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, November 4 at 2 p.m. at the Patriot's Theater at the War Memorial in Trenton.

Laura Nalman, Children's Librarian at the New Brunswick Public Library, will read Sendak's story of Max's fantastic journey to the land Where The Wild Things Are 15 minutes prior to each performance at the State Theatre and Patriot's Theater.

"A large part of ARB's mission is to collaborate with the New Jersey Public Schools to promote dance and develop dance curriculum," says Graham Lustig, ARB's Artistic Director. "We planned this program especially so that families with children will have several different ways to experience these immensely popular and accessible ballets, which are delightful to hear and watch."

Maurice Sendak's Where the Wild Things Are features a spectacular production with sets and costumes — some over eight-feet tall — designed by Maurice Sendak, and choreography by Septime Webre.

Told through a child's eyes, the ballet, performed by ARB's athletic dancers, was described as "filled with magic, wonder and humor," by Karyn D. Collins of the Home News & Tribune.

---

Graham Lustig's A Midsummer Night's Dream was called "a show stopper" by Robert Johnson of the Star-Ledger.

In addition to leading the ARB Company, Mr. Lustig serves as Artistic Director of ARB's Princeton Ballet School, which with more than 1200 students in Cranbury, New Brunswick and Princeton, is the largest non-profit ballet school in New Jersey.

Concert Season at Institute to Begin October 17 With Percussion Quartet

The Institute for Advanced Study has announced its 2001-02 concert series. "The series combines masterworks of the past with recent music, and several premiere performances," said Institute Artist-in-Residence, composer Jon Magnussen, who organized the series.

"These concerts will offer audiences an opportunity to experience both traditional and innovative music — to explore new and interactive approaches to making music with acoustic and electronic instruments."

The season's first event is the New York Percussion Quartet, which will perform on October 17 and 19 at 8 p.m. in Wolfensohn Hall, on the Institute campus.

Formed in 1994 while the members were students at The Juilliard School, the New York Percussion Quartet is dedicated to music that crosses many styles and continents, from ragtime to transcriptions of classical masters.

---

The chamber music ensemble, performing on more than 100 percussion instruments, will present a program that includes works by William Bolcolm, Dave Hollinden, Steve Reich, Iannis Xenakis, Nigel Westlake, Quartet member Joseph Pereira, and Mr. Magnussen.

The concert will incorporate a multi-speaker sound system to create an audio analogue to the usual printed program notes.

Pianist and composer Noel Lee will perform on December 12 and 14 at 8 p.m. and December 16 at 4 p.m., in Wolfensohn Hall. Mr. Lee has recorded 185 LPs and CDs since 1955, 13 of which have received a Grand Prix du Disque.

As a composer, he has been honored by the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and won the Boulanger Composition Prize. He has received commissions from the French Cultural Affairs Ministry and French National Radio.

The December program will include works by Debussy, Dutilleux, Ravel, Lee, and Magnussen.

In the New Year, baritone Sanford Sylvan and pianist David Breitman will perform on February 6 and 8 at 8 p.m. and February 10 at 4 p.m. in Wolfensohn Hall. The duo has performed extensively throughout the United States and Europe.

A Grammy and Emmy Award winner, Mr. Sylvan has also received three Grammy nominations for Best Classical Vocal Performance for his recordings with Mr. Breitman on the Nonesuch label.

The program will include works by Debussy, Jorge Martin, and Magnussen.

---

Pianist Robert Taub will perform on April 10, 12, and 13 at 8 p.m. On the program are works by Liszt, Scriabin, Jonathan Dawe, and Magnussen.

Says Mr. Taub, "I would like to link several pivotal works from the past with new works that are being composed for me at this time, all of which use the piano in new ways and extend the limits of musical perception and expression."

---

On May 11 at 7 p.m., violinist and composer Mari Kimura will present an outdoor concert of electronic music in the Institute's Birch Garden, performing works for violin and interactive computer system, and works which incorporate "subharmonics," a revolutionary extended bowing technique developed by her.

On the program are works composed by herself, Conlon Nancarrow, and others.

The concert series is part of the Institute's Artist-in-Residence program, established in 1994. The concerts are free and open to the public, but tickets are limited and must be requested in advance.

For more information on the Institute for Advanced Study's 2001-02 concert series, or to inquire about tickets, call 734-8228, or see www.ias.edu/artist-in-residence.

Beethoven Works To Be Featured In Oct. 14 Concert

The Richardson Chamber Players will open its 2001-2002 season at 3 p.m. on Sunday afternoon, October 14, at Richardson Auditorium with a program entitled Curious Beethoven, devoted to works rarely heard.

The program opens with the Seven Variations on "Bei Männern, welche Liebe fühlen" from Mozart's Magic Flute for Violoncello and Piano, performed by Amy Levine Tsang and Jennifer Tao.

Ms. Levine Tsang is a member of the Laurel Trio, winner of the Concert Artists Guild and Pro Piano Competitions.

Jennifer Tao was selected as musical ambassador by the United States Information Agency for which she toured Europe giving numerous recitals and master classes. Her principal teachers include Leonard Shure, Gilbert Kalish, Leon Fleisher, and Richard Goode.

---

Beethoven composed more than 100 settings of Scottish, Irish, and Welsh songs for voice with the accompaniment of piano trio.

The Richardson Chamber Players will offer a selection of these songs, performed by soprano Martha Elliott, violinist Anna Lim, cellist Amy Levine Tsang, and pianist Jennifer Tao.

---

Martha Elliott has appeared extensively in the tri-state area, at the Marlboro, Tanglewood, and Aspen Festivals, and in recital at the Library of Congress.

Violinist Anna Lim is also a member of the Laurel Trio, and has been a participant at such major festivals as Marlboro, Tanglewood, Ravinia, Prussia Cove, and the Portland Chamber Music Festival.

---

The program concludes with the Septet in E-flat Major, Opus 20, one of the most popular of Beethoven's works during his own lifetime. Scored for mixed winds and strings, the work is cast in six movements, reminiscent of the serenades popular during Haydn's youth.

Performers include Anna Lim, violin; Toby Appel, viola; Amy Levine Tsang, violoncello; Maureen Llort, contrabass; Evan Spritzer, clarinet; Scott Brubaker, horn; and Seth Baer, bassoon.

Violist Toby Appel has been heard in recital and concerto performances throughout North and South America, Europe, and the Far East. He has been a member of such renowned ensembles as Tashi and the Lenox and Audobon String Quartets.

Maureen Llort, contrabass, has appeared with the Dallas Symphony and Opera Orchestras, the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, and the Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia.

---

Evan Spritzer, clarinet, has appeared regularly with The Richardson Chamber Players, at Weill Recital Hall in New York, and on public radio's Saint Paul Sunday Morning.

Hornist Scott Brubaker has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra for 28 years, and enjoyed a career as soloist, chamber musician, and recording artist.

Seth Baer, bassoon, is a senior majoring in music at Princeton and participant in the Program in Musical Performance.

Tickets to the October 14th concert, priced at $20, $15, 10; students, $2; are available through the Richardson box office, 258.5000.

Roman Sculpture Exhibit To Open at University

"Empire of Stone," a show of Roman sculpture from the Princeton University Art Museum collection will highlight the museum's fall exhibition schedule. Opening on Saturday, October 13, the show will be on view in the special exhibition gallery, through January 20.

Organized by J. Michael Padgett, associate curator of ancient art, the exhibition will include 48 works. They will be installed by architect Craig Konyk in a dramatically-illuminated gallery, revealing subtle details of dress, ornament, and modeling.

Among the works exhibited are some of the finest Roman sculptures in America: marble portraits of the emperors Augustus and Marcus Aurelius; an elegant marble statue of the wine god Dionysos, draped with a panther skin; and a herm head in yellow marble representing the goat-god Pan.

There are also a funerary monument for a victorious charioteer; a monumental marble torso of a general in armor, possibly representing the emperor Nero; a marble relief of the god Silvanus holding the viscera of a sacrificial animal; and marble sarcophagi with reliefs of the infancy of Dionysos and Hercules battling the centaurs.

Princeton University's record of archaeological research in Roman Syria is documented by basalt sculptures from the Hauran region, funerary reliefs from the desert city of Palmyra, and an assortment of sculptures from the metropolis of Antioch-on-the-Orontes, seldom seen by scholars and never before exhibited in public.

The exhibition will coincide with the publication of a comprehensive, scholarly catalogue of the Museum's collection of Roman sculpture, edited by Mr. Padgett. Entitled Roman Sculpture in Princeton, The Art Museum, the catalogue includes more than 400 photographs, as well as essays that place the works in archaeological context. There are color plates, maps, entries by 16 scholar-authors, and extensive notes and bibliography.

Related Exhibition

A related exhibition, which will also open on October 13 and continue through January 20, is "Pliny's Cup: Roman Silver in the Age of Augustus."

This exhibit consists of three silver-gilt wine cups from the early first century A.D., each with bold relief decoration. These rare survivors from an age of legendary luxury complement the sculptures on display in "Empire of Stone."

---

The museum, located in the middle of the University campus, is open Tuesday through Saturday, from 10 to 5; and on Sunday, from 1 to 5. It is closed on Mondays and major holidays. For more information, call 258-3788.

MONUMENT TO A CHARIOTEER: This funerary monument, hewn from marble in A.D. 130-140, is part of the exhibition of Roman sculpture currently at the Princeton University Art Museum. Call 258-3788.

New Gallery to Feature Art of Recycled Items

Lost and Found, a home furnishings store at 20 Nassau Street that is also an art gallery, will hold its official opening on Saturday, October 13, from 1 to 5. It opened for business at the beginning of this week.

The gallery represents 25 artists from around the country, including a number from New Jersey, who create functional art from recycled materials. For example, mirrors are framed in old advertising yardsticks; table tops are formed from antique ceiling tin; and old wooden advertising signs have found their way into shelving.

Products — or works of art, as the case may be — range from table-top items like clocks and small boxes, to stand-alone items like linen chests, media cabinets, bureaus and night stands.

Dorothy Spencer, a partner in the venture, notes that, "Barn wood, old oak mouldings and the like — what were once discards — have been given new life and new meanings. These objects are all about the magic of making the extraordinary from the ordinary."

The artisan/designers whose work will be sold in the store all have national reputations; some are known internationally. Their work is one-of-a-kind, unique to Lost and Found, and will not be sold elsewhere, according to Ms. Spencer.

Her partner, Louis G. Cappola, has been in retail sales and marketing and product development for more than 25 years and will serve as the business manager for Lost and Found.

---

Ms. Spencer is the founder and designer of the home furnishings company, Reconstructions, which sells original designs through architects, interior designers, and stores in the U.S. and Canada. Many of her pieces will be available at Lost and Found.

She is also the author of three books on design history. The latest, Found Object Art, which will be in bookstores this fall, will have its publication party at Lost and Found.

MIXED MEDIA: "Out of This World" by Michael Ahearn is one of the pieces on exhibit at Lost and Found, 20 Nassau Street. Works in the gallery, which opened recently, are created from found materials that might seem worthless to many, but are transformed in the hands of the artist. Call 497-9499.

Nursery School To Hold Art Auction

The Kids Corner Cooperative Nursery School of Plainsboro will sponsor an art exhibition and auction on Sunday, October 14, at the Princeton Marriott in Forrestal Village. The art preview will take place at 2, with the auction to follow at 3.

Art in all media and price ranges will be features. The event is a fundraiser for the school, but a portion of the proceeds will benefit the American Red Cross. Tickets will be $15 per person; hors d'oeuvres and soft drinks will be served, and entertainment will be provided.

For tickets or more information, call Jeffrey Bloom, at 936-8946, or Muriel Petri, at 799-7958.

AWARD WINNER: Joseph H. Dougherty's "Profile in Determination," winner of the Phillips' Mill Art Committee Award.

Area Sculptor Wins Exhibition Award

Lawrenceville resident Joseph H. Dougherty has won the Phillips' Mill Art Committee Award for his bronze sculpture, "Profile in Determination," given at the Phillips Mill 72nd annual exhibition. At last year's exhibition, Mr. Dougherty won an award for "The Portrait Study," a life-size bust with three backlit watercolors incorporated in the base.

Other works by the sculptor, who has a studio in Pennington, may be seen at the 24th annual Bucks County Sculpture Show in Chalfont, Pa., and the permanently-installed Thomas Paine Memorial in the Visitors' Center at Washington Crossing Park, on the Pennsylvania side.

The Phillips Mill 72nd exhibition will run through October 28. Hours are Sunday through Friday, 1 to 5; and Saturday, 1 to 8.

In general, and particularly when under stress, individuals often hold a narrow view of human behavior and assign all kinds of motivations to people's behavior. Both Dr. Bobbi S. Low, Professor and Chair of Resource Ecology at the University of Michigan, and Dr. Michael E. Kerr, Director of the Bowen Center for the Study of the Family in Washington, D.C., have a broader way of understanding human behavior and functioning from an ecological, family systems, and evolutionary perspective. Dr. Low will look at the ecology of sex — how environments constrain males and females differently — in other apes and in human cultures across time and space. From risk-taking to warfare, from parental care to finding mates, Dr. Low will address the old and deep biological biases for men and women, including those that exist today. Dr. Kerr will address the interplay between family functioning and the progression and regression of societal emotional process. With society currently being in a regression, a higher percentage of families are functioning at a lower level than fifty years ago. This decline in functioning has a wide range of impact on such things as divorce rate, one-parent families, violence, relationships between the sexes, and societal institutions. Dr. Kerr will describe these changes.

Don't miss this unique opportunity to bring your own questions and hear a fresh perspective on family relationships and human behavior. Open to the public. Space is limited. Register early!

Tiger Football Loses 35-10 to Colgate; Joe Weiss Out for Season with Broken Leg

Princeton University had no answer for what Colgate University dished out on Saturday. The Tigers managed only 63 yards rushing, and 112 yards passing in a 35-10 loss. More importantly were the injuries, some serious, to Princeton players.

The Tigers started the game without star linebacker Chris Roser-Jones, who pulled a hamstring, and defensive back Brandon Mueller, who sat out with a separated shoulder. Things got worse when star receiver Chisom Opara left with a sprained neck in the first quarter after colliding with Raider linebacker Rayshard Raigns. Both players went down, but it was Opara who had to be placed on a backboard and taken to the Princeton Medical Center, where x-rays revealed that he suffered a sprained neck. He returned to the sidelines in the second half, wearing a neck brace.

Princeton suffered yet another blow when defensive end Joe Weiss broke his right fibula in the second quarter. He will miss the remainder of the season, and will be replaced by Phil Jackman. Tiger quarterback David Splithoff was roughed up in the fourth quarter, and left the game with 12:41 remaining. He was replaced by Brian Danielewicz.

WHERE IS HE THROWING THAT ONE? Princeton University quarterback David Splithoff was called for intentional grounding on this play, as he tried to get rid of the ball before being sacked by a Colgate defender on Saturday. (Photo by Bill Allen/NJ SportAction)

A Northrop Field Goal

The Tigers got on the board first with 4:56 remaining in the opening quarter after a Taylor Northrop 33-yard field goal. The play was set up by Princeton defensive back Blake Perry's interception of Colgate quarterback Tom McCune at the Raiders' 31-yard line with just under eight minutes left in the opening quarter. Splithoff found Opara for a 9-yard completion at the Colgate 22 with 7:47 remaining, and that's when he suffered the neck injury.

When play resumed after Opara was taken off the field, Princeton running back Cameron Atkinson bulled his way to the 16-yard line, and a pass interference penalty afterwards gave the Tigers the ball at the 2. Splithoff was then hit behind the line for a loss of two, and was sacked at the 10-yard line, setting up a third and long situation. Splithoff was sacked again on the next play, pushing the Tigers back to the 17-yard line. Northrop gave Princeton a 3-0 lead with the field goal.

Princeton held that lead until the five minute mark of the second quarter when Colgate fullback Matt Kobelski rumbled into the end zone from two yards out. The Raiders hit paydirt again with 8:26 left in the half on a McCune to Joe Parker 60-yard touchdown pass, and scored yet another touchdown on a 1-yard pass from McCune to Kobelski with just :10 left for a 21-3 lead at the break.

Twenty-Five Yard Strike

McCune found Parker again in the third quarter on a 25-yard strike with 10:20 remaining. Parker caught the ball in between three players, turned, and dove into the end zone. With the extra point, Colgate had built a 28-3 lead.

Princeton finally scored with 1:13 left in the third on a 16-yard touchdown run by Atkinson, who plowed over two Colgate players on his way to the end zone. It was the final score for the Tigers, Colgate's final touchdown came in the closing minutes of the game on a 10-yard run by tailback Jamaal Branch.

The Tigers dropped to 1-2 overall with the loss, but still remain tied with Harvard and Penn for first place in the Ivy League. All three teams are 1-0 in conference play. Princeton will battle Brown, at Brown Stadium in Providence, Rhode Island, on Saturday. The Bears are currently 0-1 in the conference, 1-2 overall.

Brown features a high powered offense, as well as a porous defense. Neither team's rushing attack has been a major factor in the last two meetings. Brown rolled up 53 points in 1999, and bounced Princeton, 53-20. The Tigers returned the favor with a 55-28 victory at Princeton Stadium last year. Another high scoring game this season is likely.

Liz Patrick Nets Winning Goal For Tiger Women

The Princeton University women's soccer team is 6-1-1 after a win, a loss, and a tie last week.

Senior Liz Patrick scored the game winning goal for Princeton in the 85th minute on October 2 as Princeton defeated Rutgers, 2-1. Patrick's goal came from about 30 yards out, ricocheted off of Scarlet Knight keeper Christine Caldwell's hands, and sailed into the back of the goal. It was Patrick's first goal of the season.

Freshman Esmerelda Negron gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead at the 35:08 mark after drawing Caldwell out, cutting the ball back to the middle, and scoring on the empty net.

The Scarlet Knights cut into Princeton's lead with less than three minutes remaining when Keri Lages found the back of the net. The Tigers were able to hold on and secure the victory, their sixth straight this season.

---

Princeton opened its west coast trip by playing Cal-Poly to a scoreless tie Friday in the inaugural Women's Cup Tournament, hosted by UCLA. The Tigers' Catherine Glenn registered five saves, while freshmen Esmerelda Negron and Janine Willis led Princeton with four shots each.

The Tigers followed that with a 2-0 loss to UCLA on Sunday. Stephanie Rigamat scored both goals for the Bruins, who are currently ranked second in the nation. Princeton entered the game ranked 25th.

Rigamat scored her first goal 43 seconds into the final half when she put the ball in the top left corner of the net from 20 yards out. She scored the game's final goal at the 56:27 mark when she found the back of the net from the right side.

Glenn registered six saves, and had been scored on just once prior to Sunday's game. She has allowed only three goals in just over 710 minutes of play. UCLA goalie Cici Peterson had four saves.

Princeton returns to the east coast, with scheduled games against William and Mary, at Lourie-Love Field in Princeton, on Wednesday, and at Brown, in Providence Rhode Island, on Sunday.

LIZ TO THE RESCUE: Princeton University senior Liz Patrick scored her first goal of the season, the winning goal for the Tigers, on October 2 as they defeated Rutgers, 2-1.

Tiger Men's Soccer Loses to Maryland And Harvard

The Princeton University men's soccer team is now 3-2-2 overall, 1-1-1 in the Ivy League after a non-conference loss to Maryland, and a conference loss to Harvard last week. The Tigers dropped two in a row after starting the season at 3-0-2.

Princeton freshman Adrian Melville scored twice on October 3, but it wasn't enough, as the Tigers suffered their first loss of the season, 5-2, to Maryland. Freshman Wes Kirk scored at the 16:49 mark to give the Terps a 1-0 lead, and then Siba Mohammed increased that lead to 2-0 with a goal at the 48:37 mark.

Melville then got Princeton on the board at the 53:11 mark with a header that was set up by Matt Behncke and Ryan Rich. Sumed Ibrahim, Robert Sjolund, and Michael Dello-Russo all scored consecutive goals to stretch Maryland's lead to 5-1 before Melville connected on his fifth goal of the season for the final margin.

Tiger junior Jason White, who had allowed just one goal previous to his team's game against Maryland, finished with five saves on the night.

Princeton lost 1-0 to Harvard on Saturday, as the Crimson's Ladd Fritz scored the game's only goal at the 27:03 mark. The Tigers allowed only one goal in their first five games, but have now allowed six in the last two games. White registered six saves in the loss, while Jamie Roth recorded the shutout for Harvard with four saves.

The Tigers road trip continues with scheduled games at Seton Hall on Wednesday, and at Brown on Saturday.

Friebe Scores Three To Lead Tigers Over Rutgers Oct. 3

Princeton handled Rutgers, but fell to Penn State in college field hockey action from last week. The loss to the Nittany Lions was only Princeton's second of the season.

Ivy Friebe scored a hat trick and dished out two assists, and Emily Townsend scored twice, as Princeton thumped Rutgers, 5-1, on October 3 at the Class of 1952 Stadium.

---

Townsend scored both of her goals on identical plays in the opening minutes. In both cases Friebe pushed the ball to Claire Miller, who provided the stick stop for Townsend. She then sent the ball into the back of the cage. The first score came at the 32:27 mark of the first half, and the second came less than two minutes later.

Friebe scored her first goal with 3:12 remaining in the first half after taking a pass from Townsend. Friebe then fired the ball in from the left side of the cage to give Princeton a 3-0 lead. Rutgers answered with 2:43 remaining in the half on a goal by sophomore Colleen Manicre, who scored after taking a feed from teammate Erica Hartwig.

Princeton stretched its lead to 4-1 at the 25:04 mark of the second half on a give-and-go play between Friebe and freshman Natalie Martirosian. Friebe tracked down a ball in the corner, and passed it to Martirosian, who sent it back to Friebe. She then took the ball along the endline and zipped it past Rutgers keeper Stacy Guenzle. Friebe completed the hat trick with a goal at the 15:43 mark for the final margin.

Princeton was upset by 17th ranked Penn State, 2-0, on Sunday at Bigler Field in State College, Pennsylvania. The loss snaps a three-game Tiger winning streak over the Nittany Lions, including a 4-2 win in the first round of the 2000 NCAA Tournament.

Penn State senior Meredith Shulzitski scored at the 29:39 mark on an assist by Kiley Kulina, also a senior. Kulina scored the game winning goal on a penalty corner with 33:21 remaining.

Baril had four saves in goal for Princeton, while junior keeper Anne Zinkavich had six saves for Penn State. Zinkavich recorded her first solo shutout of the season, and handed the Tigers their first shutout since a 2-0 loss to Maryland last season.

Princeton was scheduled to play at Delaware on Wednesday, will return to conference action with a road game against Brown on Saturday before stepping out of the league again for a home game against Connecticut on Sunday at the Class of 1952 Stadium.

Tiger keeper Kelly Baril finished the night with three saves, while Zehra Nizami played the final 20:16 and closed out the game for Princeton. Guenzle had 12 saves for the Scarlet Knights.

Stuart's Cannon, Farrell Win MCT Doubles Title

The Stuart Country Day first doubles combination of Jackie Cannon and Colleen Farrell stormed their way to the title at the Mercer County Tennis Tournament on October 3.

Cannon and Farrell defeated Steinert's Arpana Patel and Jennifer Hicks, 6-2, 6-1 in the opening round, and then won 6-1, 6-0 over Nottingham's Diane Wagner and Shannon Bennett in the semifinals before winning the championship, 6-3, 6-2, over Hun's Nina Licciardello and Victoria Kloss.

It was the first time that any player has won a county championship at Stuart.

Casper and Kazhdan were upended, 7-6 (2), 7-6 (3) by Nottingham's Krystal Duay and Sue Zultanski in the finals.

Hun Tennis Edges Plainsboro South To Win the MCT

It has been six years since the Hun School girls' tennis team walked away with the Mercer County Tournament crown, six years of watching the West Windsor-Plainsboro schools win the title, over and over again.

That streak ended on October 3, when the Raiders won the MCT by a narrow margin of 30-29 over West Windsor-Plainsboro South.

Hun placed each of its participating players in the finals, but none of them won a championship match. Just advancing to the finals, though, was enough to put the team over the top.

The Raiders' Angela DiPastina defeated Stuart's Kathleen Murphy, 6-0, 6-0 in the first singles opening round. DiPastina followed that with a 6-0, 2-6, 6-0 victory over Peddie's Katherine Schmitt in the quarterfinals, but lost to Plainsboro South's Celene Chang, 6-4, 6-3 in the finals.

Hun's Erica Wood defeated Allentown's Brianna Feola 6-1, 6-0 at second singles, and Notre Dame's Kelly Shedelbower 6-1, 6-0 in the quarterfinals, but lost to the Pirates' Pearly Leung, 6-0, 6-0, in the finals.

Charlotte Heyman advanced to the finals for Hun at third singles with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Stuart's Annie Sauthoff, and a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Hopewell Valley's Katie Deutsch. Heyman lost to Plainsboro South's Victoria Vnynberg, 6-0, 6-2 in the finals.

Hun Football Stunned; Falls to 0-4 After 29-26 Loss to Lawrenceville

MUELLER ON THE MOVE: Hun halfback Emery Mueller heads towards daylight after catching a pass out of the backfield during third quarter action against Lawrenceville Saturday.

"For some reason, right now, the football gods are not smiling on us," laments Dave Dudeck, head football coach at the Hun School, after his club was snakebitten again, this time falling to archrival Lawrenceville, 29-26, after leading 19-7 at the half on Saturday afternoon in Princeton.

That stinging setback was the fourth such painful loss suffered by the Raiders in their four games so far this season. Hun was been beaten by the Hill School, 18-15, by the Mercersburg School, 42-41, and by Germantown Academy, 39-36, prior to being thwarted by the Big Red four days ago.

Coming off those three road losses to Pennsylvania schools, Hun came out fired-up in its first home game of the season, and recorded a first quarter touchdown when fifth-year senior quarterback Brett Hall ran the ball in from three-yards out. The subsequent two-point conversion try failed and Hun led, 6-0. Lawrenceville, now 3-1, came right back and tallied a touchdown on a 59-yard run by junior halfback Andrew Ciccone. A PAT kick made the score 7-6, in favor of the Big Red.

Hun, however, was not behind for long, scoring twice in the second stanza. Hall connected on a 53-yard scoring strike with senior wide receiver Leo Stinson, and then completed a toss to sophomore wideout Craig McGovern for a four-yard score. The two-point try failed after the first touchdown, but Todd Demler's PAT kick after the second was good, giving the locals a 19-7 cushion at the intermission.

Another score by L'ville, this one on a 14-yard ramble by Ciccone, followed by a two-point conversion, closed the gap to 19-15 late in the third quarter. Just before the end of that period, though, Hun also tallied a touchdown when post graduate tight end Jimmy Caffarello hauled in an eight-yard pass. The subsequent Demler kick made the score 26-15 as the rivals headed into the fourth frame.

A 38-yard pass from L'ville senior signal-caller Jonathan Paulson to tight end Luke DiLorio cut Hun's lead to 26-21, and a four-yard touchdown scamper by Paulson, followed by a two-point pass from Paulson to DiLorio, gave the Big Red a 29-26 lead.

With plenty of time left in the tight tussle, the two teams exchanged punts, and Hun got the ball back again with about four minutes remaining. A penalty and a sack brought up a fourth-and-35 for the homestanding Raiders, but Hall found senior wideout Peter Burke on a 55-yard pass to give the locals new life.

At the 25, with 40 seconds and no timeouts remaining, Hall appeared to complete a game-winning pass, but it was broken-up at the last second. With one more chance left, Hall heaved the pigskin towards Burke, who had come free in the endzone. Burke slipped just before the reception, the ball sailed over his head, and floated into the waiting arms of Lawrenceville senior defensive back Patrick Murphy.

---

"Yeah, it was kind of ugly at the end," sighs Dudeck. "They wore us down a little bit and were able to run on us in the second half.

"For the kids, a loss like this is really devastating, because they work so hard and should, at some point, be able to enjoy the fruits of their labor. It's also really hard for the coaching staff to swallow, in part, because we've lost four games by a total of 10 points and, realistically, we could be 4-0 instead of 0-4 right now."

While Hun's running game was stymied by the Big Red (12 carries for one-yard), Hall completed 15-of-29 pass attempts for 340-yards and three touchdowns, and is now over 1,400-yards for the season. Stinson had eight receptions for 212-yards and a score, while Caffarello hauled in four tosses for 66-yards and a touchdown. When asked by a teammate about his yardage on the day, Hall responded, "I don't even know and I don't care. If we don't win, it doesn't matter."

Among the defensive leaders for the Raiders were Caffarello, tackle Skyler Dugger, and Emery Mueller, a middle linebacker who totaled three sacks on the day.

Next up for Hun will be a home game against unbeaten Blair Academy and its wishbone offense at 2 p.m. Saturday, followed a battle against 3-1 Peddie at 2:30 p.m. October 20 in Hightstown.

"The bad is that it doesn't get any easier from here," assesses Dudeck, adding, "But the good news is that we lost six starters to injury during the first game of the season and, by Saturday, we should get everyone back healthy. We're going to just keep on working our tails off, keep on pushing, not let ourselves get down in the dumps and, eventually, the wins will come." —Bill Allen

PHS Still Seeking Elusive First Win

Princeton High traveled to McCorristin seeking its first win of the high school football season on Friday night. The Tigers will have to wait yet another week, because the Iron Mikes handed them a 14-6 setback.

Princeton was in control, with the score tied 6-6 in the first half. The Tigers had put together a nice drive, and were smelling the end zone. Head coach Ray Strelecki's squad moved the ball to the 34-yard line before McCorristin's Steven Fioravanti picked off a David Mostoller pass and raced 69 yards to the 1-yard line. Iron Mikes' fullback Khaim Perry dove in for the touchdown, and it was the difference in the game.

Princeton will have to wait until Saturday for another chance at win number one this season. The task won't be easy when Lawrence and speedy back Orlando Kane visit Harris Stadium for a 2 p.m. matchup.

Johnson's Three TDs Lifts PDS Football

PDS running back Jeremy Johnson scored three touchdowns and rushed for 104 yards as PDS blanked Sussex Vocational Tech, 26-0, on Saturday. Johnson had runs of three, one, and two yards, while Ken Miller had a 33-yard touchdown run.

He also had two blocked punts and five tackles, while teammate Justin Revelle had seven tackles. PDS returns home to face McCorristin on Saturday. Game time is scheduled for 2:30.

ERIC ON THE MOVE: Princeton High's Eric Sandberg-Zakian moves the ball across the field against Notre Dame on October 3. The Tigers used a second half burst to defeat the Irish, 5-1. (Photo by Steve Allen)

PHS Boys' Soccer Stuffs Notre Dame, Pounds Ewing

Princeton High improved its boys' soccer record to 7-2 with impressive wins over Notre Dame on October 3, and Ewing on Friday.

Princeton pulled away from Notre Dame in the second half and won 5-1 going away. The Tigers' Angel Martinez punched the ball in the net for the game's first score with 14:36 remaining in the first half after a free kick deflected off Irish goalie Nick Hoover's hands, and dropped in front of the goal.

Three minutes later Princeton's Ryan Morgan took control of the ball on the left side of the field, and crossed a pass to the right, where teammate Whitney Hayes was waiting in front of the goal. Hayes sent the ball in net, past Hoover, and the Tigers led 2-0, the halftime score.

The score could have been tied 2-2 at the half, but Tiger goalie Stuart Abram made two diving stops that preserved his team's lead. The first stop came with 8:42 left in the first period, as a shot from the left side sailed right, seemingly into the net. Abram threw his body sideways, and picked the ball out of the air.

Abram again threw his body sideways, with 2:20 remaining, to stop a rebounded shot from a previous free kick.

Icing on the Cake

Morgan followed with an unassisted shot from directly in front of the goal a little over one minute later, and then Scott Callahan drove the ball home after a pass from Morgan, who sent the pass across the field after sliding under a Notre Dame defender and taking the ball away.

Morgan summed up the play in a few words. "Just call it hustle," he commented.

Princeton head coach Wayne Sutcliffe was pleased with his team's overall performance after a less than spectacular peformance against West Windsor-Plainsboro South the previous game that resulted in a 3-1 loss for the Blue and White.

"We had a really good first half against WW-P S," he said. "We were confronted with a big test in the second half, and we didn't pass.

"We responded a little bit better today. We still need to improve, in terms of possession. We need to possess the ball more in heated moments of the game

---

Sutcliffe talked about his team's ability to bounce back after surrendering a goal to the Irish.

"We responded well after the Notre Dame goal," he said. "We still shouldn't have allowed that goal. I can't argue with scoring five goals, but I can argue with giving up one.

"We're still trying to piece together 80 minutes of quality soccer against top notch teams. In terms of where we need to be as a team, we're not there. We still have a long way to go, but we're getting there."

The Tigers followed that win with an impressive 11-0 victory over Ewing on Friday. Whitney Hayes, Alden Chanquin and Micheal Mann scored two goals apiece, while Angel Martinez, Ryan Morgan, Eric Sandberg-Zakian, Dan Gerstle and Nelson Guerrero all scored once. Martinez added two assists.

Princeton (7-2) took 25 shots on goal, while Ewing was held to just four. The Tigers were scheduled to play Steinert, at home, on Wednesday, and will visit Hopewell on Friday.

PDS Boys' 5-3 After Two Wins

The Princeton Day School boys' soccer team upped its record to 5-3 with victories over Wardlaw-Hartridge and Ranney last week.

The Panthers scored three goals in the first half, and held on for a 3-1 victory over Wardlaw-Hartridge in Edison on October 2. Junior midfielder Justin Elanjian scored twice, while senior forward Mike Battaglia added a goal and an assist. PDS took 18 shots on goal for the game.

PDS followed that with a decisive 6-0 victory over Ranney on Thursday, thanks to a hat trick by Mike Sieglen, and two goals by Elanjian. Jimmy Patrick scored once, while Battaglia had two assists.

The Panthers were scheduled to play Gill St. Bernard's, at home, on Tuesday. PDS will then travel to the Pennington School on Thursday, before returning home for a battle with Saddle River Day School on Saturday.

Hun Boys' Soccer Wins Two Straight

Hun improved its record to 3-4 with wins over Morristown-Beard and Lawrenceville last week.

The Raiders' won their second game of the season, 3-1, over Morristown-Beard on October 3. Paul Johnson led Hun with two goals, both on assists from Boomer Kotchin, who scored one goal in the victory. The Red and Black took 15 shots on goal.

---

Kotchin had two goals and an assist for Hun, while teammate Paul Johnson scored one goal and dished out an assist in the team's 3-1 victory over Lawrenceville on Saturday. The Raiders scored three times in the second half to put the game away.

Hun was scheduled to play St. Benedict's, at home, on Wednesday, and will play the Blair Academy, also at home, on Saturday.

PDS 2-1 Last Week In Girls' Soccer

The Princeton Day girls' soccer team is now 7-3 after two wins and one loss last week.

Stephanie Costa scored two goals, while teammate Carly Berger had one goal and two assists in the Panthers' 5-3 victory over Wardlaw-Hartridge on October 2. Costa's first goal came on a feed from Berger, and Costa was assisted by Danielle Horowitz on her second goal.

PDS scored four times in the opening period to take a 4-1 lead at the half. Despite three goals by Wardlaw-Hartridge in the second half, the Panthers held on for their sixth victory of the season.

Costa and Elif Sen scored one goal apiece on October 3, but it wasn't enough, as the George School defeated PDS, 4-2. George scored two goals in the first half, and enjoyed a 2-0 halftime lead. Both of the Panther's goals came in the second half.

The Panthers rebounded with a 4-2 victory over Lawrenceville on Friday. Lauren Hinkel led the PDS charge with two goals, while Berger had one goal and two assists.

PDS was scheduled to play at Gill St. Bernard's on Tuesday. The Raiders will travel to Purnell on Thursday, and Pennington on Saturday.

PHS Girls Earn Two Shutout Wins

Princeton High improved its record to 10-0-1 in girls' soccer with shutout wins over Notre Dame and Ewing last week.

Princeton used a second-half surge to blank Notre Dame, 2-0, on October 3. Maddie Carter scored the game winning goal on a feed from teammate Zoe Sarnak, and then Claire Marchetta added an insurance goal ten minutes later to lift the Tigers. It was the team's ninth consecutive victory.

The Tigers pitched another shutout on Friday with a 4-0 victory over Ewing. Cora Barros scored twice and had one assist, while Amanda Sustak and Lisa Hayes added one goal apiece.

Princeton is set for a critical week of Colonial Valley Conference action. It will play at Steinert on Wednesday, and will return home to Valley Road Field for a battle with top ranked Hopewell Valley on Friday.

It will be the toughest week for the Tigers so far this season, giving them a chance to stake their claim as the CVC's best team.

Hun Girls Stumble To 2-6 Record

The Hun girls' soccer team dipped to 2-6 after three losses last week.

The Raiders dropped a 2-1 overtime decision to Lawrenceville on October 2 in a seesaw affair that ended with a goal by Andrea Cerulli.

Cerulli scored the first goal of the game in the opening period after taking a feed from Devin Fratarcangelli. Hun answered with a goal of its own, tying the score 1-1 at halftime. Cerulli ended the game on an assist from Amanda Cmielewski.

---

The Raiders lost another tightly contested match, this time in a 1-0 contest to Pennington on Thursday. Pennington's Kylee Rossi scored what proved to be the game-winning goal with a minute remaining in the first half.

Hun lost 1-0 to Montgomery on Saturday. The Raiders were allowed just five shots on goal, while the Cougars took 12 shots.

Hun was scheduled to play Rutgers Prep, at home, on Tuesday. It will travel to Allentown on Thursday, and will return home to face the Blair Academy on Saturday.

PHS Field Hockey Drops Three Straight

Princeton High's field hockey team dropped to 1-7 after suffering three losses last week.

Princeton surrendered two goals on October 1, and lost 2-1 to West Windsor-Plainsboro South in overtime. The Tigers' lone goal came from Abigail Sage in the first half. The Pirates' Michelle Hyland scored once in regulation, and ended the game with a goal in overtime.

The Tigers suffered their second consecutive overtime loss, this time in a 3-2 contest to Hamilton on October 3. Princeton fought back to tie the game at two in the second half with goals by Becky O'Neill and Noelle Marchetta, but fell short in its quest to snap a five game losing streak.

Princeton's defense held Steinert to just two goals on Thursday, but the Tigers weren't able to counter on either one. The result was a 2-0 loss, Princeton's sixth in a row. It will try to rebound with a scheduled road game at Notre Dame on Tuesday, and a home game against Nottingham on Thursday.

Stuart JV's Win 2-0 over Solebury

The Stuart junior varsity field hockey team beat Solebury, 2-0, on October 3. Sarah Williams scored the Tartans' first goal, while Taylor Blazewski added an insurance goal in the final stanza.

PDS Field Hockey 1-0-1 Last Week

The PDS field hockey team is now 3-4-1 after a win and a tie last week.

PDS and George battled to a scoreless tie on October 3. The Panthers took nine shots on goal, while the Cougars were allowed only three.

The Panthers topped Morristown-Beard, 3-1, on Friday. Katherine Weber scored two goals, while Betsy Welsh added one goal and two assists. PDS took 15 shots on goal, while Mo-Beard was limited to four.

PDS was scheduled to play at Peddie on Wednesday, and will travel to Lawrenceville on Friday.

Greubel's Goal Lifts Hun Field Hockey

The Hun field hockey team got one goal from Jamie Greubel on Saturday, and it was all the Raiders needed to defeat Lawrenceville, 1-0. Hun improved its record to 6-1 with the victory, and is now set to face Stuart, at home, on Wednesday. Hun will conclude its week with a home game against the Blair Academy on Saturday.

Stuart/Solebury Game Rescheduled for Oct. 22

The Stuart versus Solebury varsity field hockey game, orginally scheduled for October 1, was postponed until October 22 due to rain. This week the Panthers will battle Hun on Wednesday, and Notre Dame on Friday.

Physician & Son Learn About Third World Medicine in Hospital in Namibia

Physician Michael Wong, a co-founder of the Princeton Eye Group, spent two weeks in Namibia, Africa, recently with his son Matthew, 17. The two were neither on safari nor on vacation. They volunteered their time and expertise to Surgical Eye Expeditions, a nonprofit organization that provides ophthalmic care to indigent populations in various parts of the world.

The younger Wong, a senior at The Hun School, is a trained emergency medical technician. He plans to become a physician and he accompanied his father, he said, because it was an opportunity not to be missed. Once there, he found himself pressed into service, as one of the better-trained people in the area.

There are five ophthamologists for the entire nation of Namibia, according to Dr. Wong. Physician Helena Ndume holds a government position and is responsible for ministering to the black population — more than a million people; the other four opthamologists serve the Caucasian residents of the country, most of whom live in the capital city of Windhoek.

"The entire country is several centuries behind the U.S.," according to Dr. Wong. He and Matthew saw patients at a regional hospital in Oshakati, a community near the border with Angola. The U.S. State Department has warned Americans that the area is unsafe.

"That part of the country has been torn by wars for years," Dr. Wong noted. "There was barbed wire around the hospital. Angola is 50 miles away; and rebels often cross the border to cause disturbances."

Despite the unsettling surroundings, however, the Wongs had no problems. "We were part of a well-publicized entourage." Dr. Wong explained. "Besides my son and myself, there were 15 people, including Dr. Ndume, nurses, and Red Cross volunteers."

When Sam Nujoma, the president of the country called to find out if the Wongs were all right, however, Dr. Wong said, "I got a hint that the area was more dangerous than we had been led to believe!"

WONG & WONG: Dr. Michael Wong and his son Matthew in a hallway of the Oshakati Regional Hospital in Namibia, where they spent some time last summer providing medical care to the area's indigent population.

His time in Africa has changed the way he thinks about the world, Matthew said. "The other night a friend of mine wanted to go for a cup of coffee. I thought, 'Oh, my God, it costs $4; and down in Africa people are starving,' Life in Namibia is very difficult."

Dr. Wong described the food as "just awful." It consisted of a kind of maize porridge, caterpillars, and fresh bananas. "At least, the bananas were good! In one week, I probably ate more bananas than I have in the whole past decade," he declared.

Issues of diet and discomfort became unimportant, Dr. Wong said, when the bandages were removed from the eyes of patients who had been blind for years. "They communicated with a big smile that transcended any language barriers. It was exhilarating. Patients who saw their children for the first time sang hymns to us and begged us to come back."

"Our trip," Dr. Wong said, "could make a permanent difference in that area. For one thing, we left an autoclave [surgical instrument sterilizer] and a microscope there for the next visiting doctors. Even more important, our patients will go back to their villages and spread the word that modern medicine can work."

There is no question in Dr. Wong's mind that he will go back — either to Namibia or to some other needy corner of the world. The experience in Namibia, he said, has reoriented his way of thinking. "I had never set foot on the African continent before; and Namibia was about as un-Princeton-like as it is possible to be."

In the future, Dr. Wong said, the Princeton Eye Group plans to send someone to work with Surgical Eye Expeditions every year. "There is more need for physicians in other parts of the world than there are physicians willing to volunteer. We have to go."

—Anne Rivera

OPHTHAMOLOGIST & PATIENT: Dr. Michael Wong with a favorite patient at the hospital in Namibia where he performed 100 cataract operations last summer.

Dr. Wong and Matthew were driven back and forth from their lodgings outside the hospital by body guards, he reported.

Most of Dr. Wong's patients suffered from advanced cataracts that had been diagnosed before the Wongs' arrival by people the government hired for the purpose. "They might be zoologists or safari guides," according to Dr. Wong. "The cataracts were so pronounced, you could see them with a pen light. In all my years of practice, I have never encountered such advanced cataracts."

Procedures Were Rudimentary

Procedures at the hospital were "relatively rudimentary," the physician said. "The hospital was clean, but the rooms would not pass muster here." The surgery he performed, he noted, "pre-dates my residency."

Many African nurses and volunteers did not speak any English, which made matters difficult. "My first two cases, I literally broke out in a cold sweat. There was also no anesthesiologist, merely a technician in the pre-operative area."

The technician injected a local anesthetic, Dr. Wong said, then put a rock on the patient's eyelid to soften the eye and spread the anesthesia. There was no sedation, so patients were awake through the procedure.

"We could not understand how they could remain so still," Dr. Wong said, "until we learned the technician had told them if they moved, the eye would fall out and hit the ground; and they would be blind!"

Dr. Wong performed 100 cataract operations himself; Dr. Ndume performed 60. On some days, Dr. Wong completed 24 operations, he said, working until 10 p.m.

"Matthew was a tremendous help to me; he facilitated my surgery by measuring patients' eyes for the proper lens, and closing each case," the physician noted.

The Africans accepted Matthew as an educated healthcare worker. In Namibia, healers are the most highly regarded members of society, Dr. Wong said; and Matthew was accorded the respect due such people.

Cokie Roberts Initiates Dawson Lecture Series At Stuart Country Day

ABC News correspondent Cokie Roberts initiated the Caroline Dawson Memorial Lecture Series at Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart on October 1, when she spoke to students in grades 8-12, on the role of women. She discussed women's role from a historical perspective, in politics, as voters, as citizens, and as politicians.

Ms. Roberts encouraged service to the public and said the events of September 11 only emphasize its importance. She suggested that students follow the example of Caroline Dawson, a 1989 graduate of Stuart.

Caroline received the Margherita Condell Award on Prize Day, an award that is given to the Stuart senior who most demonstrates a sensitivity to and awareness of the needs of others, has demonstrated service to the school and the community, and is a woman of faith.

Caroline became a teacher, dedicating her life to the education of children; and she continued to volunteer as a tutor during the last weeks of her life. She died of melanoma in January 2000, at the age of 28.

The lecture series is funded by the Caroline Dawson Memorial Fund, established by James and Mary Dawson in memory of their daughter.

The Caroline Dawson Memorial Lecture is to be presented by a speaker whose personal and/or professional achievements represent a model reflection of the commitment of Stuart Country Day school to educate women to make a positive difference in the lives of others.

Ms. Roberts graduated from Stone Ridge Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Washington, D.C. She is co-anchor of the ABC News program "This Week," and is a special correspondent for ABC News, covering politics, Congress, and public policy. She also often serves as a substitute anchor for "Nightline."

She is a news analyst for National Public Radio, where she was the Congressional correspondent for more than 10 years. As a Congressional correspondent, she won a number of awards, including the highest honor in public radio, the Edward R. Murrow award.

The author of two books — We Are Our Mother's Doughters and From This Doy Forword [with her husband Steven Roberts] Ms. Roberts is the sister of the late Borough Mayor Barbara Boggs Sigmund, who died of cancer in 1990.

Ms. Roberts also spoke to Stuart parents and friends on the evening of October 1, at a cocktail reception to benefit the Barbara Boggs Sigmund Scholarship, which funds the tuition of a minority student from the Borough or Township.

RELIGION

Dean of Religious Life Appointed at Princeton

The Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Breidenthal, a scholar, teacher and Episcopal priest who has been a leader in interfaith cooperation, has been named dean of religious life at Princeton University, effective January 1.

Rev. Breidenthal, the John Henry Hobart Professor of Christian Ethics and Moral Theology at the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church in New York, will fill the position left vacant by the retirement of Joseph Williamson in June.

Vice President for Campus Life Janet Dickerson, who led the search, said Dr. Breidenthal brings an unusual combination of theological and pastoral experience and academic qualifications. "He is a sensitive and caring minister who has worked throughout his career to promote an essential dialogue among Christians, Jews and Muslims and among Christian denominations.

"At the same time, he is recognized as a scholar who challenges us to think about some of the most pressing issues in theology."

As dean, he will oversee all religious activities on campus and provide support for all traditions, while serving as liturgical leader to the University Chapel congregation. He will be responsible for ecumenical worship and for the three principal University interfaith services — Opening Exercises, the Service of Commemoration and Remembrance, and Baccalaureate.

At the General Theological Seminary, he headed the Center for Jewish-Christian Studies and Relations for several years and participated in dialogue with Islamic leaders.

He received his bachelor's degree from Portland State University, a master's degree in English literature from the University of Victoria in British Columbia, Canada, and a master of divinity degree from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific in Berkeley, Calif.

He earned a doctorate in theology from Oxford University, where he wrote his dissertation on The Concept of Freedom in Honnoh Arendt: A Christion Assessment.

Guest Preacher Sunday At University Chapel

The Rev. Dr. Obery M. Hendricks Jr. will be the guest preacher at the Princeton University Chapel on Sunday, October 14, at the 11 a.m. worship service. He will speak on "a Prescription for Remaking the World."

Dr. Hendricks' visit is part of "Voices of Hope," a two-year series during which outstanding American preachers are invited to address the Princeton community, both town and university, during the University Chapel 11 a.m. worship.

A former Wall Street investment executive and professional musician, Dr. Hendricks is president of Payne Theological Seminary, the oldest African American theological institution in the United States.

He holds a B.A. from Rutgers University, an M.Div. from Princeton Theological Semiary and a Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Dr. Hendricks has served as professor of New Testament and Christian Origins on the faculties of Drew University and New York Theological Seminary, and is an Ordained Elder in the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Among numerous academic awards, he was selected as the "Outstanding Biblical Scholar" of 1994 by the Fund for Theological Education.

In 2000 he was honored as "Activist of the Year" by the African American Church Studies Program at Fuller Theological Seminary and presented the Community service Award at the Jerusalem 2000 Unity Day Conference in Ba'ar Sheva, Israel.

Noted for his ideological-political readings of the Bible, Dr. Hendricks has written several books, including A Discourse of Dominotion: Closs, Ideology ond 'The Jews' in the Gospel of John (Peter Lang Press, forthcoming).

He is a member of the Advisory Translation Committee of the New Revised Standard Version Bible and is the commentator on John's Gospel in the Oxford Annototed New Revised Stondord Bible.

National Day of Prayer

Thursday, October 11 has been declared National Day of Prayer. St. Paul's Church will hold Evening Prayers from the Liturgy of Hours at 7:30 p.m. The half-hour service will be prayed and sung. All are welcome.

There will be Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament all day beginning after the 8:15 a.m. Mass.

Friends' Meeting Offers Film on Nonviolence

As part of the YWCA's Week Without Violence programming, Princeton Friends Meeting will show videos of three episodes of A Force More Powerful, on Thursday, October 18, at 7:30 p.m.

A Force More Powerful is a documentary series of one of the 20th century's most important and least celebrated stories — how nonviolent power overcame oppression and authoritarian rule. It documents the stories of millions of people who chose to battle the forces of brutality with nonviolent means— and won.

The first episode focuses on India in the 1930's. It tells the story of how Gandhi and his followers, by adopting a strategy of non-cooperation, civil disobedience and boycott, set India on the path to freedom.

The second episode shows how black college students, in the 1960's in Nashville, Tenn., successfully desegregated Nashville's lunch counters by disciplined and strictly nonviolent actions, becoming a model for the entire civil rights movement.

The third episode deals with the wave of nonviolent protest in Chile in 1983 against the dictator, Augusto Pinochet, which despite severe repression, led to the organization of a democratic opposition and the defeat of Pinochet in the 1988 referendum.

The building in which the program will take place is on the grounds of Princeton Friends Meeting. These grounds are located at 470 Quaker Road, just at its corner with Mercer Road.

Enter the parking lot from Quaker Road. Go into the parking lot as far as you can, walk along the cemetery wall on the side next to the Meeting House, and enter the U-shaped building just beyond.

After the video showing, taking about 1½ hours, there will be discussion and light refreshments.

---

Built circa 1760, expanded by the famed John Notman in the 19th century and added to in the 20th century by architect-historian, William Short, this stone and brick cottage offers as much charming ambiance and updated comfort as it does historic pedigree. The parlor, showing its origin with deep-set windows, has steps down to the dining room; nearby, stairs to the second floor. A short hallway, with door to a large screened porch, leads to the step-down living room, with crown molding, fireplace and picture window overlooking the rear garden. A well-arranged kitchen, with recessed lights and back stairs to the second floor, opens to a skylit breakfast room, with French door to the outside. Adjacent a laundry and full bath. On the second floor, the master bedroom, with dressing room, an additional bedroom and a hall bath. Bordered by the Princeton Seminary and Marquand House. $649,000

New Listing

Sitting well back from the road and sheltered by ageless trees, this charming Federal style farmhouse offers the gracious welcome-home ambiance of its late 19th century origins, enhanced by thoughtful restorations and renovations. The foyer, with maple floor, opens to the living room, with 9' ceiling and marble fireplace with antique mantel; a door leads to a lovely screened porch, with flagstone floor, framed by graceful arches and columns. A formal dining room has tall windows and a fireplace, with antique mantel. The wide plank floor, hand-hewn ceiling beams, and two walls of barn siding give the family room a delightful historic authenticity; two walls of windows provide beautiful views of the gardens, sweeping lawn and golf course pond. The well-planned kitchen, with pie back stairs, opens to a mud/laundry room; adjacent, a full bath. On the second floor, the master bedroom, two additional bedrooms, a sitting room and hall bath. Outside, handsome stone and brick walls provide areas for flowers, a small courtyard and serene patio; steps terrace down to the lawn. Also, a large garage/barn and an outbuilding, presently a workshop. On 5+ acres. In Hopewell Township.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

QUESTIONS TO ASK A PROSPECTIVE REALTOR

When you buy or sell a home, you want to work with a Realtor who has the experience and expertise to handle such a complex transaction with a minimum amount of stress. When choosing a Realtor, you should look for technical competence and interpersonal skills.

Ask prospective Realtors several questions. How long have you been in the business? How do your services differ from those of your colleagues? Do you have a principal broker/owner who works closely with you and serves as a backup person if you are not available? Keep in mind that there are no "right" answers to these questions. Don't rule out a less-experienced agent who brings energy and enthusiasm to the job. You want personalized professional service from someone whom you can trust to lead you through the process.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.
